Why the Dollar Pegging?
Pre-Natal Oxygen
Gulls Help Farmers
—By Arthur Brisbane—

THREE MORE STATES, Iowa, New Hampshire, Connecticut, have declared for repeal of the prohibition amendment. The vote for repeal now stands 14 to 0. Those who thought it impossible to get 36 of the 48 states to vote against prohibition, bootlegging and racketeering may find that they were mistaken.

Connecticut voted six to one, and New Hampshire two to one against prohibition.

Nine million Americans, voting thus far, have averaged four to one against the Eighteenth Amendment. That chapter in American history and American crime and bootlegging may soon be closed.

Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, bitterly disappointed by the repeal vote that has swept every state thus far, says:

"We shall have to accept the result, whatever it is."

This shows the right spirit. The nation has been "accepting" bootlegging and racketeering for a long time.

Fortunately repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment will not prevent those that prefer it from drinking ice water, leaving the demon 3.2 beer to work destruction among the weak.

In addition to helping the government, which needs the money and gets it from the beer tax, beer appears to be helping the farmer. Consumption of cheese has increased 20 per cent since legal beer arrived.

The production of pretzels has increased because of beer. And because of the amount of salt on pretzels, the pretzels making men thirsty, increase the consumption of beer.

London reports say the United States is ready to "peg the dollar at $4.40" of our money for one English pound (off the gold standard), paper pound.

Why, in the name of Providence and common sense, all this pegging talk? How can we tell what the paper pound will be worth six months hence? When England went off the gold basis, we didn't meddle, or suggest any "pegging."

France cut 80 per cent from the value of her francs, thus cutting 80 per cent from the amount she paid to Englishmen that had lent her tens of millions at the old franc value. The English were not consulted.

Why all the "dollar pegging?" Are we unable to attend to our own dollar, as European nations have attended to their own currencies without asking our advice, or permitting our interference?

A wise man from the Harvard school of business yesterday said:

"Prepare to see the dollar go a great deal lower."

He seemed to think that drop would be an excellent thing for the United States at this moment.

It might disturb the owners of bonds, preferred stocks and some other things, but it should encourage you to hold on to your real estate. As the dollar goes lower, values and rents, inevitably, will go higher, and mortgages will be more easily paid.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science learns from Prof. Joseph Bancroft, learned Britisher, of Cambridge University, that "man's intelligence is due to the fight that he makes for oxygen before he is born."

The struggling for oxygen develops the brain, and "when the supply of the mother can no longer answer the demand birth takes place."

Nature contrives ingeniously to control "over-production." Farmers around Wolfville, N.S., watching with despair the grasshoppers eating their crops, suddenly smiled as flocks of sea gulls, arriving from far away, began eating the grasshoppers by the millions.

Similarly, not long ago, as Mr. Vernon Bailey, of the Agricultural Department, tells you, gulls flying over mountain ranges came to the rescue of Northwestern farmers watching field mice devouring their alfalfa. The gulls devoured the field mice, the crops were saved.

How do the gulls know of these feasts? Are certain gulls delegated to fly in all directions, seeking good news, prospecting?

At High Point, N. C., four high school students opened a grave to take pictures of a skeleton, thinking that they were engaged in scientific research. Convicted of "disturbing a graveyard," the boys are sentenced to take turns spending five nights alone in the graveyard.

That MIGHT be called "cruel and unusual punishment," to which the Constitution objects. But it may be useful to the boys, if they are not too much frightened to think, compelling them to reflect the rights of others, particularly those in graveyards, while they sit through the night wondering whether ghosts are real.

'Al' Is Called Names in Latin

A few years back if anyone had called "Al" Smith "Alfredo praestantissime, felix ille miles," he'd have been apt to get a sharp comeback, but he was called that today at Harvard—and took it in his stride.

The former Democratic candidate for President and now First Citizen of the Nation, also heard smilingly his sidewalks of New York referred to as "Vita Novi Eboraci."

It was all in the Latin oration by R. S. Fitzgerald, '33, at Harvard commencement exercises, and the "Alfredo" part translates to mean:

"Most illustrious Alfred, thou happy warrior."

RACE RESULTS AT ROCKINGHAM

First race—Jimmy D, first; Grace R, second; Grand Fox, third.

By WIN BROOKS

Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., June 22—In the lowering daybreak at 4:30 o'clock, Mr. Lorenzo P. Magnus, of Memphis, Tenn., took his morning constitutional, which is a dog trot around a horse race track.

This is not merely a workout for Mr. Magnus but is by way of being his business, and a very serious one, indeed, for upon the speed of Mr. Magnus' daily jaunts considerable heavy metal is wagered during the course of a race meeting.

The ebony-hued gentleman from Tennessee takes nobody's word for the condition of a track, slow, heavy or fast, but a good many people take his and pay him for it whatever strikes the fancy, a two or four-bitter being the usual rate.

IT PAYS TO KNOW

It seems that a good many horses can only run well on lightning-fast tracks, while others are good on slow tracks and not a few are very good mud waders and it pays to know, before laying your money on a bangtail, whether the track he is going to run on is suitable to his temperament.

"Then you have capitalized this knowledge into a very lucrative business," Mr. Mangus, we suggested.

"I allus does it," he said. "Take Ima' night fo' instance. Dat was a heavy showah and de track look heavy dis mornin'.

"But I goes aroun' dis mornin' in fas' time an' I don' get no mud on de shoes. Take a look at dat."

He holds up the bottom of a shoe half the size of a barn door.

"Ain't nuffin' stickin' dere. Ain't no little bits o' mud stickin' to de rims. No little cakes. So de track fast and de boys bets dere money today on de fast track horses like I says. I have de size foot—hail a leg on de roun' one calls it, what is made for de job."

LADY LUCK'S SLAVE

The track tester sleeps in the stables and eats when and where he may. During the course of a good day he picks up $5 for Magnus-authenticated information on daily track conditions and what he gets he bets, sometimes to win, more often to lose, even as you and I.

A hazy lassitude, a sort of adolescent coma, for all horse followers are ever youngsters in hope, hangs over the track. Under it beats the quick pulsation of the gambler, unperceived. One vaguely gains the impression that the fate of nations hangs on side-mouthed instructions, whispered conferences. But it is only the fate of the bankroll.

Nobody hurries. The crowd appears to have submitted to a transfusion of its energy to the running horses. Tractors dragging the dirt, flags rippling in the northwest breeze, late-layers walking toward the mutuel windows, are the fastest moving before post time.

Tariff Fight Is Forced by Roosevelt; Peg Plan Sidetracked

BULLETIN.

London, June 22 (INS)—Reports were circulated this afternoon that Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, acting for various European delegations clamoring privately for action, conveyed a "diplomatic warning" to Secretary of State Cordell Hull that the United States must "buck up" or risk taking responsibility for the impasse facing the parley.

By GEORGE E. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Geological Museum, London, June 22 (INS)—From his vacation yacht off the New England coast, President Roosevelt spoke the word today that may mean success or failure for the World Economic Conference.

He put the United States definitely on record against any temporary currency stabilization agreement, leaving it squarely up to the French and British whether they are willing to go ahead with the conference in an endeavor to solve other economic problems, dropping the currency issue for the present.

President Roosevelt's attitude was made known in a formal statement issued by the American delegation at 3 p. m., which charged undue emphasis was being placed on temporary stabilization and defended the price-raising efforts of the administration in Washington as the best means to world economic recovery.

Several hours previously, Secretary of State Hull in an exclusive interview with International News Service had disclosed the American position.

Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald of Britain and Finance Minister Georges Bonnet of France were informed of the tenor of the American statement before it was issued.

GANGS' BLUE BOOK LISTS 'PIKERS'

Petty Offenders, Not Racket Barons, Are Named for Jury

His famous "list of 486 gangsters and racketeers" was delivered today by Deputy Police Supt. John M. Anderson to Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley in connection with the grand jury's probe of crime in Boston—and the list is understood to have given the prosecutor considerable of a shock.

Instead of a list of desperadoes with records for robbery, violence or even with arrests in connections with murders, it is understood the list contains names of citizens charged with "the crime of parking," names of juveniles taken for various minor offences—and even the name of one "desperado" fined $10 for selling lemons without a license.

For three days and nights police at headquarters were reported as having worked day and night to compile the "list of 486 gangsters and racketeers."

Within a short time after the district attorney and his assistant, Frederick T. Doyle, had been handed the list, today's session of the grand jury probe was adjourned—the third vain attempt in as many days to secure police co-operation.

It is understood also that police have failed to furnish the district-attorney with the personnel record of the entire police department and that other records asked for are still not forthcoming.

Chief Clerk Thomas Gill of the police department, Deputy Supt. Martin H. King, division inspector, and Deputy Anderson went before the grand jury today before the adjournment at 1 p. m. until 9:30 a. m., tomorrow.

Gill is understood to have been questioned about keeping of police records at headquarters, and King about police dealings with dwellers in the underworld, and about police supervision of various enterprises, including a pawnshop car Scully sq. in which Charles "King" Solomon, slain racket leader, is declared to have been interested financially.

Waiting in the grand jury anteroom, but not called, were Deputy Supt. James McDevitt and Lieut. Stephen J. Gillis, "undercover man" for Police Commissioner Hultman.

MEET ALFRED E. SMITH, LL.D.!

(Harvard Graduation News and Pictures on Pages 13 and 14)

GOV. J. B. ELY ADJT.-GEN. JOHN H. AGNEW ALFRED E. SMITH

With a thousand colleges conferring them, honorary degrees are a dime a dozen this time of year. Not so the academic kudos of Harvard—especially not when the school that is the symbol of New England's conscience and the nation's conservatism confers an LL.D. on Alfred Emmanuel Smith, prednct of New York's Fulton Fish Market. Harvard's degree definitely stamps New York's former governor as the first citizen of the land. In leaving the State House, with Governor Ely and Gen. Agnew, to receive the doctorate, "Al" Smith honored Harvard almost as much as Harvard honored "Al" Smith.

BANKER 'TOO OVERCOME' FOR WORDS AT VERDICT

Acquittal Comes After 24-Hour Balloting; Steuer Elated

New York, June 22 (AP)—Charles E. Mitchell was acquitted today on all counts in the indictment which charged him with income tax evasion.

The jury, which had heard the government charges that Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank, had cheated the government in 1929 and 1930 of more than $850,000 in income taxes, took the case at 111:25 a. m. E. S. T., yesterday.

It returned the verdict a little more than 24 hours later.

The charges against Mitchell, who for many years was one of the most powerful figures in the banking world, were briefly that he had illegally failed to report a payment of $666,666.67 from the National City Co. in 1929, and that he had made sham stock sales to make it appear that he had suffered such heavy income losses that he owed no tax in 1929 and 1930.

MITCHELL IN TEARS

The stock sale in 1929 was to Mitchell's wife, and the one in 1930 to W. D. Thornton, president of the Green Cananea Copper Company.

The jury had been instructed that it could convict or acquit on all the charges together, or could convict or acquit on any one charge.

The jury returned for instructions three times, once yesterday and twice today. It was at the conclusion of the third appearance of the jury in the courtroom that verdict acquitting Mitchell on all counts was returned.

Mitchell leaped to his feet as he heard the words, "not guilty" pronounced in a low voiceby James K. Campbell, foreman, and grabbed the hand of Max D. Steuer, his counsel. His face was fiery red, his eyes filled with teams. With Steuer he left the courtroom while the jurros were still in the box.

Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard requested the jurors not to dis cuss the case publicly and dismissed them.

THANKS EACH JUROR

"I can't talk now—I'm too moved," Mitchell said as the crowd pressed around him as he left the court room.

With Steuer, he disappeared into the ante-room, where he had spent hours waiting for the verdict.

When the jury had been excused, Mitchell made his way to the corridor and through another door into the ante-room of Judge Goddard's chambers, where he shook hands with the jurors individually, saying:

"Thank you, sir."

Some of them congratulated him.

Steuer made this statement:

"This verdict proves that in the State of New York justice can still be had by the verdict of a jury; that neither mob psychology nor emotion will enter the final determinatio n.

"Mr. Mitchell was absolutely innocent of the accusations made against him as a result of what was deemed popular demand.

"After a prosecution which followed a most exhaustive search and the exercise of the greatest diligence on the part of the prosecutor, who presented his case with as great ability as I have ever witnessed, the jury nevertheless saw the truth and decided accordingly."

6 Men Overcome in Fire on Navy Yard Warship

Six workmen were overcome by smoke when fire broke out in the No. 3 fireroom amidships of the cruiser Raleigh today at the Boston Navy Yard in Charlestown.

Those overcome were:

FUGO, Angelo, boilermaker:

KADRA, William M., boilermaker:

HIGGINS, John V., welder:

PEARCE, H. A., machinist:

BIGWOOD, F. W., machinist.

THOMAS, Edgar, boilermaker

The injured men were sent home after treatment at the yard hospital. They were working in the fire room with 25 others when the blaze started. Companions carried them to safety.

A detachment of sailors was rushed aboard an ammunition lighter which was tied up alongside the Raleigh. They were prepared to move the lighter out into the harbor if the fire gained headway. Several cases of ammunition on the forward deck of the lighter were removed to another pier.

The work crew was putting finishing touches on the boilers after a general overhauling of the cruiser. Naval officials believe the fire started when a welder's torch came in contact with oil-soaked debris.

MOLEY A 'SAFETY PIN' FOR PARLEY, SAYS WALKER

ROOSEVELT'S OWN ENVOY TO DELIVER THE REAL PUNCH

James J. Walker, former mayor of New York, engaged by International News Service to report the World Economic Conference, today continues his description of the proceedings.

By JAMES J. "JIMMY" WALKER

Copyright, 1933, by International News Service

Geological Museum, London, June 22 (INS)—Covering the world economic conference becomes more like reporting a snappy game of puss-in-the-corned. It sounds like a Jane duck conference that no one will read and no one who hears will want to remember.

When the delegates arrived in London, each came with the feeling that he was destined for a place among the world's immortals. It seemed marvelous to play even a small part in the biggest show of all times.

A certificate of appointment, each soliloquized, would hang in the parlor for neighbors enviously to gaze at Sunday afternoons while at tea or coffee klatch or what have you—something for the children even unto the third and fourth generations to swank about.

But today there's a feeling it's just a preparatory course for an undertaker's license.

Of course, committees do meet, and they are addressed by a delegate from "some place," and then they proceed to appoint some new sub-committee to study and consider the speech. It has all the thrills a baseball fan gets at a cricket game.

JAMES J. WALKER
Snapped as reporter in press room at London Conference

Moley's Big Job

Whenever a delegate comes out of the diplomatic anaesthetic, he starts to pack for home, but some one is always there with another gas bag.

"You must carry on, old boy, Moley is coming."

And there you have the safety pin which keeps the conference from falling into the Thames.

Moley Moses—I mean the professor—is expected to settle the debts, stabilize currencies, readjust tariffs and perform a few other odd jobs around the house of all nations—but what is louder and funnier—he is expected to do it all to the complete satisfaction of every delegation.

Well, he might as well try to fit the Empire State building into a telephone booth as satisfy all the "gimme boys."

However, until the arrival of the super-ambassador, they have agreed to lay aside their time tables, park the "return" part of their round-trip tickets in their wallets, but not without a threat that if he doesn't come through they will be through.

Like Man With Toupee

Like the man with a toupee, they are fooling nobody but themselves.

In spite of all crape hangers and all reasons for hanging crepe, I still believe President Roosevelt knows what he is doing and I know he always has a reason for anything he does.

I generally turn to sports to seek my analogies, and I think I have found one that may fit the attitude of the President. I once saw a boxer, primed for the contest, trained to the minute, with sufficient courage for a pack of wolves, enter a ring and there be compelled to sit 20 minutes waiting for the appearance of his opponent.

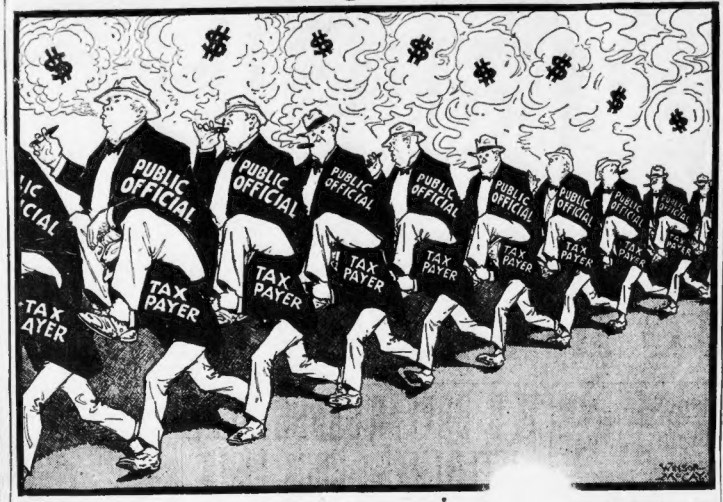
The mental strain of waiting and the over-anxiety of the boy reduced him to a nervous wreck and turned his knockout punch into a cream puff.

And so in another week, if these delegates constinue in the direction they are heading, their heavyweight demands may become lighter than featherweights.

It was generally considered some time ago before former President Hoover declared the moratorium on debts that he was in a position to make almost any kind of a deal for final settlement of the vexatious question. He held all the trumps but preferred to sit and admire them rather than play them.

And with that lesson in mind, I'll be surprised if the new President of the United States doesn't do a little finessing that will make them remember he was in the game.

Sitting Pretty



"Every peasant in Prussia," it used to be said, "carries a soldier on his back."

That, of course, is no longer true with respect to Prussia.

In this country, fortunately, we have no peasants—and, far from militarism, our Army is pitifully small.

But we have TAXPAYERS—and the spoils system in politics has loaded these taxpayers down with a burden greater than Prussia ever knew.

It is not an exag[illegible] that every American taxpayer carries an offici[illegible] state or local—on his back. In the words of the National Civil Service Reform League:

"The American taxpayers are giving the political organizations a subsidy of $500,000,000 a year to help them maintain their organization machines through political patronage."

What are the American taxpayers going to do about it?

RACKHAM WILLS $30,000,000 TO CHARITY

Science Church Gets $50,000; Ford Autos Made the Fortune

Detroit, June 22 (AP)—The millions of the late Horace H. Rackham, who made his fortune as one of the original stockholders in the Ford Motor Co., are going to charity.

The will of the wealthy philanthropist, who died June 13 at the age of 73, was filed for probate today. It created a trust fund for various charitable uses which, attorneys said, will result in making nearly $30,000,000 available over a period of 25 years.

Between $12,000,000 and $13,000,000 is available immediately.

BEQUEST OF WIDE SCOPE

The principal and income is to be expended for "such benevolent, charitable, educational, scientific, religious and public purposes as in the judgment of the trustees will promote the health, welfare, happiness, education, training and development of men, women and children, particularly the sick, aged, young, erring, poor, crippled, helpless, handicapped, unfortunate and under-privileged, regardless of race, color, religion or station, primarily in Michigan and elsewhere in the world."

$100,000 FOR STUDENTS

Under special gifts made in the will, the University of Michigan regents will receive $100,000 to be used as loans or gifts to deserving students. A score of other smaller bequests were made, which included $50,000 to the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Mass.

Rackham, at 45, borrowed $5000 to invest in stock of the Ford Company, and 15 years later sold out to the Fords for $12,500,000. He never put more than the initial $500 into the company and had drawn more than $4,000,000 in dividends.

Shaw Calls Parley 'Idiotic'; Hull Fights 30-Day 'Pegging'

(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.)

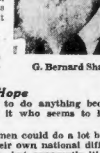
Ayot St. Lawrence, Hertfordshire, Eng., June 22 (INS)—The World Economic Conference has been mistitled. It should be known as the "World Idiotic Conference."

In a devastating attack upon international parleys, world statesmen and bankers, George Bernard Shaw, in an interview at his home in Hertfordshire, let loose his vitriol today and subjected the economic conference now meeting in London to violent castigation.

He ripped and tore through the deliberations, accused statesmen of ignorance and bankers of greed, and strongly urged that the delegates pack up their luggage and start for home immediately.

"They might just as well go home now," the famous playwright and wit declared, "for the conference has failed—it failed before it began."

"This isn't an economic conference," he snapped. "It's real name should be the World Idiotic Conference.



G. Bernard Shaw

Talk a Lot and Then Hope

"It's impossible for it to do anything because there's nobody attending it who seems to know what it's about.

"It seems to me statesmen could do a lot better by attempting to solve their own national difficulties in their own countries, but apparently it's the custom today when countries get in a hopeless mess for statesmen to say: 'Let's have an international conference to see what the deuce is going to happen.'

"Then they talk a lot and sit back hoping for the best.

Bankers Block Success

"It's all wrong. These problems purely concern individual countries, and individual reforms are necessary—President Roosevelt is proving this.

"One reason why international conferences don't succeed is because bankers are allowed to have a hand in them.

"International bankers are profiting by the world's insolvency, and it's natural they don't want it to get solvent again.

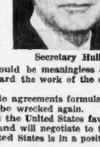
(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.)

London, June 22 (INS)—The United States is opposed to any temporary 30-day currency stabilization agreement because it would be "meaningless" and likely to wreck the work of the World Economic Conference, Secretary of State Cordell Hull told International News Service today in an exclusive interview.

The chairman of the American delegation insisted, however, that the United States "favors stabilization in principle" and will begin negotiations toward that end at the proper time.

Hull's remarks were in the nature of a counter-offensive against attacks by European statesmen against refusal of the United States to be dragged into a stabilization agreement before anything else is done.

"I have told a leading world economic conference personage, whose name I cannot reveal, that the United States is opposed to temporary 30-day stabilization," Hull said, "because we know that such stabilization would be meaningless and would not contribute toward the work of the economic conference.



Secretary Hull

"Any international trade agreements formulated on this basis would soon be wrecked again.

"I told this person that the United States favors stabilization in principle and will negotiate to this effect as soon as the United States is in a position to do so.

"Such stabilization would mean something."

Secretary Hull denied there was great divergence between the American and European attitudes regarding essential problems facing the conference.

"I told this person further," he continued, "that the United States favors gold as the international measure of exchange and that it favors reduction of tariff barriers and abolition of discriminatory quotas and embargoes, which are expressions of rabid nationalism.

"I have demonstrated that the United States is ready and willing to shoulder her share of responsibility, but we should not always be asked to give without being given anything in return."

Hull said he had not conferred with Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, but insisted he was ready to "talk business with anybody."

The subject of Soviet-American trade, he said, has been discussed informally on several occasions at Washington in recent weeks, but nothing concrete has yet materialized.

1345-Pound Hide of Old Meanie Ready

For over a year his hide—1345 pounds of it—has been soaking in 500 gallons of gambier tan. Soon it will be mounted.

Now Iceman Brings the Beer, Too

Something new in the ice business was introduced today by the Boston Ice Co.

In addition to putting a 25-cent chunk in the ice chest, the iceman will also leave a case of 3.2, if you so desire. He'll place it right up cl[illegible] to the ice so it'll be nice and cold when the wage earner comes home to the evening meal.

The ice company announced today that the stockholders have approved an amendment to the company's articles of organization enabling it to buy and sell beverages which may b esold legally in this state.

BUCK, DEFIANT ON STAND, PINS KIDNAPING ON BROTHER

ADMITS HE CAN NAME NO GANG IN THE CRIME

Did Not Seek to Learn Identity; Tells of McMath's Pleas

By JAMES J. SMITH
Boston Evening American Staff Reporter

Barnstable, June 22—A far different Cyril Buck than the fainting Cyril of yesterday—a snarling, snapping, defiant defendant—declared today in the McMath kidnap trial that he made no attempt to learn the identity of the alleged gang because "it was none of my business."

Frequently talking back to Dist. Atty. William C. Crossley, his suave cross-examiner, Cyril, who, with his brother Kenneth, is charged with kidnaping little Peggy McMath, 10, of Harwich, was admonished several times by the court to confine himself merely to straight answers.

In the grueling cross-examination, Cyril finally admitted that he knew no one, with the exception of Kenneth, who was "in on" the kidnaping.

Cyril was in far more vigorous form when he took the stand today than he was when he began his testimony yesterday and then collapsed.

ADMITS NO KIDNAP AID.

At one time early in today's cross-examination he began to snap back at the district attorney doing the questioning, and was cautioned by Judge Hanify to stick to straight answers and refrain from talking back.

With some asperity Cyril charged that Detective John Stokes told the stenographer at Woods Hole frequently to change the wording of the statement. However, he could not point out any specific instance where his story was altered.

Cyril said he recalled Neil C. McMath, father of Peggy, saying to him while he was helping him negotiate for the return of his child:

"There is nothing I would not do for you if you get my girl back."

Q—Do you recall Mr. McMath putting his arms about your neck? A—He put his arms about my shoulders.

Q—Did you say, "To hell with that stuff," A—To Mr. McMath?—No, I did not.

Dist. Atty. Crossley forced Cyril to admit he knew no one, with the exception of his brother, Kenneth, who was "in on" the kidnaping of Peggy.

CAN'T NAME BOOTLEGS

Q—You were in constant touch with Kenneth all the time? A—No, sir.

Q—Well you were from Wednesday, (May 3, the day after the kidnaping) until the return of the child. A—Yes.

Q—And there was no one else but Kenneth in on the kidnaping? A—Yes, there was. A gang of bootleggers.

Cyril explained why he took Peggy's lunch box to McMath.

"McMath naked me," he said, "to get definite proof that I was in contact with the actual kidnapers, and I went to see Kenneth. My brother said he would see 'these guys.' That night he blew the horn of my car while I was in George Blenkhorn's house and I went out and got the lunch box."

Q—Did you know this gang? A—No.

Q.—Did you try to find out? A.—No.

Q.—Why didn't you? A.—It was no concern of mine.

Q—Didn't you ever try to find out who the gang was? A.—Yes, once I asked Kenneth who they

Stolen Base Crash Kills Ballplayer

Putnam, Ct., June 22 (AP)—Renie Deloge, 19-year-old Wauregan third baseman, died last night from a fractured skull received in a baseball game three days ago. Deloge, who was unconscious 36 hours, was injured as Dominick Ziembaski, of Sterling, pitcher in the opposing team, ran into him while stealing third base.

The Wauregan player had stooped to catch a pitched ball, teammates said, when the accident occurred.

Air Armada Start Now Set for Weekend

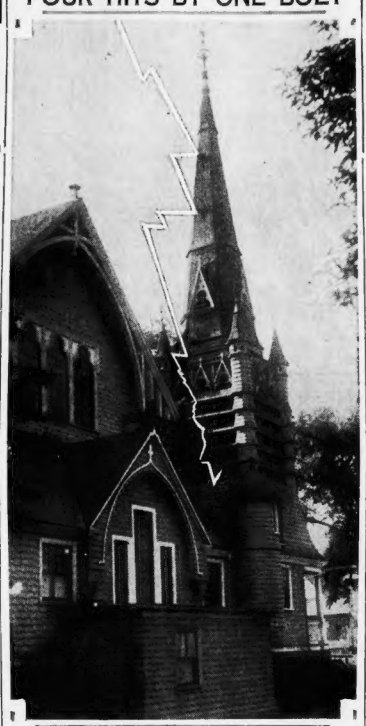
Orbetello, Italy, June 22 (INS)—Commanders of the proposed Italian mass flight to Chicago today expressed hope the air armada might get started on its trip either Saturday or Sunday.

Repeated delays in the take-off have been caused by unfavorable weather conditions over the Alps and other complications. It had been hoped to start the 25 seaplanes on their trans-Atlantic flight this morning, but stormy weather prevented.

Fisheries Reopen

Lewes, Del., June 22 (AP)—The Atlantic Fisheries Co., near Cape Henlopen, Del., will resume operations July 1 after having been inactive since the fall of 1931.

FOUR HITS BY ONE BOLT



This home-run hit by lightning, in which the bolt touched all the bases, damaged the spire of the First Universalist Church at Willow and Essex sts., Melrose, early today. Four separate spots, as shown by the photo-diagram, were hit simultaneously as the bolt forked its way out of the clouds onto the steeple. It was one of the many freak pranks of the fierce storm that swept down on Greater Boston. (Boston American photo.)

Mercury Mounts as Summer Returns

After being A. W. O. L. for more than a week, summer weather returned today and took up its duties with enthusiasm, the offical mercury reaching 82 at noon.

The well known and justly celebrated weather man, whose record for calling his shot has been somewhat tarnished of late, smiled broadly.

He pointed out there were no storms in sight, and that the temperature should go much higher, possibly exceeding the record of 93 for this date established in 1921.

Bangor Man Elected Postmasters' Head

Keene, N. H., June 22 (AP)—William Holden of Bangor, Me., today was elected president of the New England Postmasters' Association at the closing session of the convention. Mrs. Elizabeth B. Flint of North Attleboro, Mass., was elected vice-president; H. E. Erwin, New Britain, Ct., secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Blanche Robinson, Wareham, Mass., recording secretary. Postmasters Hurley of Boston and James Brownell of Woodstock, Vt., spoke.

HAVOC BY BOLTS IN BIG STORM MOUNTS

Churches, Houses, Barns Hit in Greater Boston Tempest

Many dwellings were struck by lightning during the violent storm which swept the state early today, and firemen estimated that $25,000 damage was caused by fires started by bolts in Greater Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. John Leary of Crescent st., Melrose, were thrown from their bed and three of their children narrowly escaped when lightning tore a hole through the roof of their home and caused damage estimated at $4,000.

Lightning tore a hole in the wall of the home of Miss Grace Bradbury, a musician of 286 Main st., Melrose.

A bolt struck the tower of Universalist Church in Melrose, ripped its way down to the lower part of the edifice and started a fire which did $500 damage.

A house in Brent st., Dorchester, was struck by lightning and its occupants fled to the street as fire started in the rear of the building. Another house was struck at K and Fifth sts., South Boston, while lightning, striking an Edison circuit in the Strandway, put out hundreds of street lights.

Another lightning bolt struck the roof of the City Point police station and put out all the lights and affected the telephone, teletype and signal system in the station.

A large barn on the estate of Harcourt Amory, prominent Boxtonian, in Ipswich was struck and destroyed. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

The storm and lightning also wreaked havoc along the South Shore. Damage of $20,000 was caused by a fire in a storage barn in Raymond st., East Raymond, started by a bolt. Lightning also struck a stone shed in Liberty st., Quincy, causing $700 damage.

In Malden the home of Capt. Charles Kenney in Bloomerth st. was struck. Fire followed and caused several hundred dollars' worth of damage.

Soviet Wireless Aids Hunt for Mattern

Moscow, June 22 (AP)—The Soviet wireless station on Chukot peninsula, near Alaska, has been ordered to establish contact with American stations to aid in the search for Jimmie Mattern, American round-the-world flier, missing since he left Khabarovsk, Siberia, a week ago for Nome.

Mexico, D. F., June 22 (AP)—Civilian and governmental aviators redoubled their search in the jungle wilds today for two Spanish transatlantic fliers, Ariano Barbran and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, long overdue in a flight from Havana.

Storm Causes Damage

Prison Officer's Home Stoned

A barrage of sidewalk bricks broke glass in more than a half dozen windows of the home of State Prison Officer John E. Prendergast in Chapman st., Charlestown, today.

Four men in a dark-colored sedan, according to the Prendergast family, threw the bricks.

Prendergast has been on day duty for nine years, being assigned to the clothing shop, and prison officials say he is a popular officer.

Two Killed in Berlin Shooting

Berlin, June 22 (AP)—One Nazi and one unidentified man were killed and two storm troopers were seriously wounded in a shooting in the suburbs of Koepenick early today. A Marxist who fired the shots was arrested.

HAYS DEMANDS STONE CASE GO TO GRAND JURY

An attempt to obtain a grand jury investigation of the case of Judge Arthur P. Stone, whose removal from office was blocked by the Senate, was made in the House today.

Rep. Martin Hays of Brighton introduced an order directing the attorney-general to call a special grand jury, and also providing that evidence be laid before the Middlesex County Bar Association.

Hays' request that Rule 28 be suspended, thereby permitting the measure to go before the committee on rules without the customary five days' delay, was denied.

The House originally voted 130 to 75 to have Gov. Ely remove Judge Stone, but the Senate defeated the order by a vote of 25 to 12.

In introducing his measure Rep. Hays said he had read that the Middlesex County Bar Association could not proceed against the justice unless a complaint was lodged with them.

"I intend to see that they receive a complaint," said Hays.

BOYS HUNTED IN BLUE HILLS

Randolph and Metropolitan police today continued an all-night search through the Blue Hills for two small boys who disappeared from their home at 92 Stacey st, North Randolph yesterday.

The boys are Albert and Frank Rice, 10 and 11 years old respectively, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Rice.

Today Brockton police were asked to look for the boys on the theory they might have attended a circus there yesterday. Mrs. Rice also visited Boston police headquarters.

Search in the Blue Hills centered around Houghton's Pond where police dragging, parties were busy all night under the glare of floodlights. Numerous small ponds, brooks and swamps were also being examined. The missing boys were said to have told friends they were going to hike in the Blue Hills.

GERMANS FEAR CIVIL WAR

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

London, June 22 (INS)—Radical Nazi leaders are driving Adolf Hitler's new Germany toward a form of "national Bolshevism," it was said today on the basis of news trickling from Berlin through confidential diplomatic channels.

Prominent German Nationalists now in London declare German industrial captains are alarmed at developments. They even predict that, unless Hitler recaptures control of the Nazi movement from the radical elements, there is every prospect of civil war in the fall.

Since the world economic conference was called to bring order out of economic chaos, British and the foreign delegates here are beginning to worry over the extreme isolationism of the newly emerging Hitlerite proposals with their unmistakable trend toward organizing German economy along Russian lines.

Crowley Wins Degree, Bride

New Haven, June 22 (AP)—Joseph P. Crowley, football and track star, was headed today for White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, with the daughter of T. A. D. Jones, former Eli gridiron coach, as his bride and a degree from Yale.

Miss Betty Shearn Jones and the Eli athlete, a resident of Milwaukee, were married late yesterday in a simple ceremony in the home of the bride's parents. A few hours before Crowley, whose work in the backfield in 1931 and 1932 contributed much to Eli victories over Harvard, received a bachelor of arts degree.

Mr. and Mrs. Crowley planned to drive to West Virginia, Milwaukee and Chicago. After visiting the World's Fair they plan to return to live in Boston or New York.

Love Envoy Too Late to Meet Alfonso

Fontainebleau, France, June 22 (AP)—Former King Alfonso of Spain left his exile residence here for London today before the arrival of an emissary who was to beg forgiveness for his son's marriage yesterday to a Cuban commoner.

The former Prince of the Asturias, who married a girl not of royal blood despite his father's opposition and thereby lost his rights as heir to the Spanish throne, had sent Duke Manuel Almadova from Switzerland to seek a reconciliation.

Woman, 90, Falls to Street From Window

Worcester, June 22—Mrs. Laura Mafuca, 90, of Westminster st., suffered injuries, which may cause her death, early today when she fell from a second story window of her home to the street while trying to close a window. She is at Worcester City Hospital suffering from concussion of the brain and a fractured arm.

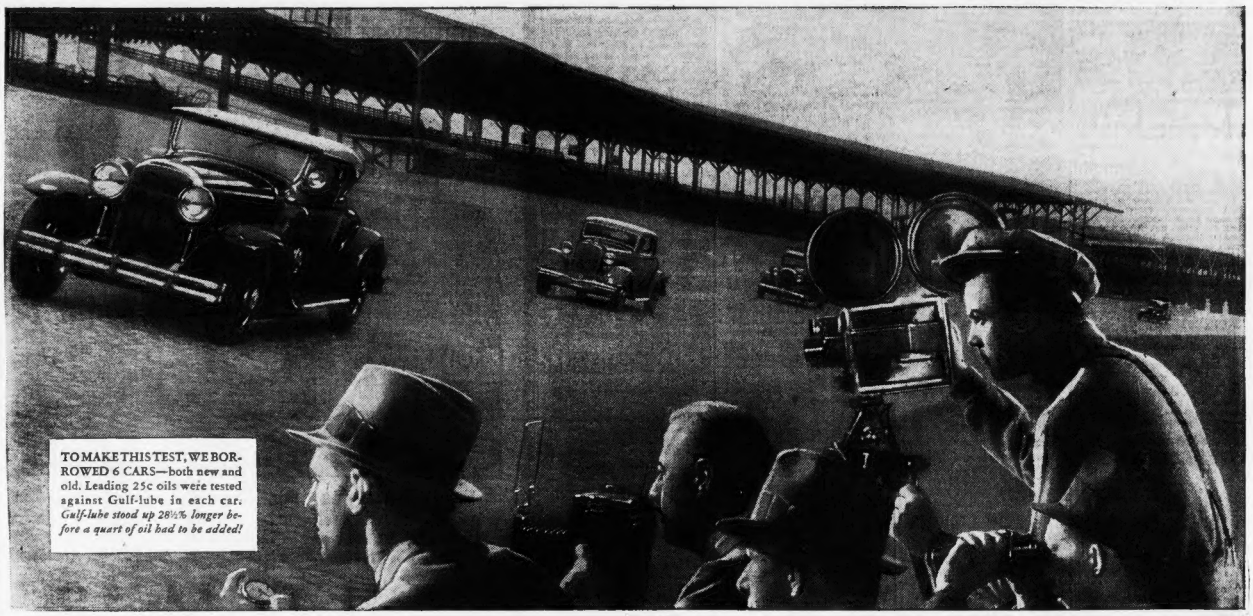
THE NEW "HIGH-MILEAGE" MOTOR OIL



TO MAKE THIS TEST, WE BORROWED 6 CARS—both new and old. Leading 25c oils were tested against Gulf-lube in each car. Gulf-lube stood up 28½% longer before a quart of oil had to be added!

GULF-LUBE ...shows 28½% more miles per quart in daring Speedway test by A.A.A.*

Never has America seen an oil as good as this for 25 cents a quart

WHEN we told A.A.A. officials we wanted to make this test, their eyes widened—"That takes nerve!" they said. But we made it!

Six borrowed cars—old cars, new cars—were placed upon the famous Indianapolis speedway.

Look at these figures. For example . . .

With oil "B" in its crankcase, one car traveled only 152 miles before needing a quart of oil. With Gulf-lube, that same car went 235 miles before the oil level dropped a quart . . . over 50% more miles!

Car No. 2—consumed oil "C" at the rate of a quart every 652 miles. With Gulf-lube, consumption dropped to one quart every 1447 miles. What a difference!

For four days, 12 hours a day, the tests went on—checked by representatives of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association. Then all the figures were averaged, and here was the amazing result—Gulf-lube cut the oil costs on these cars 28¼%—over a fourth!

Better lubrication for less money!

Switch to Gulf-lube today. You will save money 2 ways. First, you'll use less oil! Second, you'll spend less for repairs. Try it! Buy Gulf-lube at any Gulf station. It's the finest motor oil a quarter ever bought.

*Contest Board of the American Automobile Association

MISS GEORGIA MACDONALD, 257 N. Oxford St., Indianapolis, owner of a 1933 Plymouth, one of the cars borrowed for this test.

CYRIL BUCK, IN ANGER, BLAMES HIS BROTHER

were so that I could tell the police.

Q.—Didn't you just say it was no concern of yours? A.—I don't remember that.

The blue lunch box that Peggy had with her when she was stolen was shown to Cyril and he said it looked like the one he referred to.

Under questions of Crossley, he said:

"I like a drink sometimes and sometimes two or three."

Crossley read alleged statements made by Cyril at Woods Hole, but Cyril said he could not remember most of them. Others, he said were "misquotations."

Q.—Did you say that these statements were changed by the stenographer? A.—Yes.

Crossley produced clothing, a raincoat, shoes and trousers, which the hooded man wore on the Rob the night of the final negotiations for the return of the child. Cyril said they were his clothes and that Kenneth had borrowed them from him.

Q.—Didn't Kenneth visit your garage on Tuesday just before he went to the school to get the child? A.—He did.

Q.—What did he go there for? A.—I don't, know. I think he mentioned something about a broken oil line in his car.

Q.—When did you see him again? A.—The next morning.

TOLD OF MONEY

Q.—Your brother made your garage his headquarters, did he not? A.—No.

Q.—Did you not know where the money was? A.—I did not know where it was.

Q.—Didn't you tell the officers to go to Kenneth's home when they sought the money? A.—Yes.

Q.—You were concerned with your brother's welfare, weren't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—And that is why you suggested a "compromise" to officers, isn't it? A.—Yes.

Cyril repeatedly told the district attorney:

"You are not making yourself clear Mr. Crossley."

The district attorney questioned him at length about his actions on the night the child was returned.

Q.—How many times did you go to Kenneth's home on Thursday night? A.—About three times.

Q.—You were going back and forth most of the night, were you not? A.—Yes.

FEARED KENNETH'S DEATH

Q.—When did you make the arrangement to pick up the child near the Ramsinus Road estate on the night she was returned? A.—A half hour before we picked up Kenneth and the child.

Q.—Didn't you know that Kenneth knew where the child was at that time? A.—I did not.

Q.—You knew tonight but that the child would be returned? A.—I did. I doubted whether the girl would be returned or not. I thought that perhaps my brother was being he tool of this gang and that he would be done away with along with the child.

Q.—But he used to come to you for advice, didn't he? A.—Yes.

Q.—You are older than he is? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you at any time go to Kenneth and tell hi mthat you thought both of you should go to the police? A.—No.

Q.—Why didn't you tell Kenneth to take the girl back? A.—I didn't think he had her.

Q.—You brought the lunch box from him, didn't you? A.—Yes.

KENNETH IN DISGUISE

Noon recess was called as Crossley pressed Cyril as to why he did not try further to learn the whereabouts of the girl.

Crossley read passages from the transcript of Cyril's alleged statements made at Woods Hole and Cyril continued to say he did not remember most of them. He denied he did testify he had "a few cocktails," and charged that Crossley was attempting to confuse him.

"Your questions are confusing, Mr. Crossley," Cyril snapped.

Q.—Do you mean that I am not making myself clear? A.—I mean that you are not trying to make yourself clear. You are trying to be confusing.

DIDN'T ORDER MASK

Q.—Why did you meet your brother at the ice house the night the child was returned? A.—Because e said he would be there.

Q.—Didn't you know he changed his clothes there? A.—I did not.

Q.—You knew he had your clothes didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—You knew your brother was going to be masked on the boat? A.—I did not.

Q.—You gave him your clothes, didn't you? A.—I did not. I did not want him to mask.

Q.—You did not tell him not to be masked, did you? A.—No.

Charles E. Mitchell, former head of the National City Bank, New York, broke into tears when a U. S. court jury acquitted him today of income tax frauds.

ROOSEVELT IN ULTIMATUM

to dissuade Secretary Hull from issuing the statement.

They found the Americans firmly entrenched on this policy, which President Roosevelt had approved before his statement was issued.

TARIFF PLAN PRESENTED

In conformity with President Roosevelt's expressed belief that other measures are more necessary than currency stabilization, Hull promptly moved to translate words into action by presenting a resolution before the conference designed to decrease tariff barriers and all sort of trade restrictions.

The resolution called upon the conference to declare itself in opposition to trade measures emancipating of "rabid nationalism"—such as possible" of all embargoes, quotas, "and other arbitrary restrictions." And set forth that "it is against common interest for a nation to adopt or continue a policy of extreme economic nationalism and to raise additional trade barriers and discriminations."

TEXT OF STATEMENT

The text headed "A statement of the American delegation" follows:

"Undue emphasis has been placed upon consideration of a plan proposed for temporary de facto stabilization of currencies.

"The fact is this never was an affair of the delegation. It was considered by representatives of the treasuries and central banks of the United States, Great Britain and France, Oliver M. W. Sprague having been especially sent to represent the United States Treasury for this purpose. The American Government at Washington finds that measures for temporary stabilization now would be untimely.

The reason why it is considered untimely is because the American Government feels that its efforts to raise prices are the most important contribution it can make, and that anything that would interfere with those efforts and possibly cause a violent price recession would harm the conference more than the lack of an immediate agreement for temporary stabilization.

"As to the ultimate objective, the American delegation has already introduced a resolution designed for ultimate world-wide stabilization of unstable currencies, and is devoting itself to the support of measures for the establishment f a co-ordinated monetary and fiscal policy to be pursued by the various nations in co-operation with the others for the purpose of stimulating economic activity and improving prices."

Gold Bloc Delegates Welcome U. S. Statement

London, June 22 (AP)—The gold bloc nations headed by France welcomed the American stabilization declaration today as the first clear-cut official statement by the United States of its position at the world economic conference.

"The lines now are clearly drawn," a spokesman for the French delegation said, "and we know where we are going."

Fear that certain gold countries may be forced to abandon the yellow metal if the United States is left with a free hand to devaluate the dollar is advanced in high quarters as the reason the gold bloc reluctantly agreed to continue economic discussion despite the non-stabilization of the dollar.

France and her gold "allies"—Switzerland, Holland and Belgium —had at first insisted that stabilization must come before other conference work.

An immediate breakdown of the conference was apparently avoided by the American move, European delegations indicated, despite the face every gold bloc country, especially the smaller ones whose gold positions were weakening, served notice in lobbies that it was impossible to carry on serious economic discussions until a measuring rod is provided by stable currencies.

They will continue to insist on stabilization at the earliest possible time, it was reported.

Malden Boosts Beer License Rate

New rates have been established by Malden's license commission as a result of the city's wet vote. The new licenses will be issued at the annual rate of $125 for sale of bottled goods and $200 where liquor is to be consumed on the premises.

Girl Is Shot Dead by Mystery Autoist

New York, June 22—As Betty Schwartz, 21, stood talking to some friends in front of her home in the Bronx, last night, an unidentified man walked out and, without saying a word, fired three shots at her. She fell dead. The slayer ran to an automobile and escaped.

How Would You Punish an Unfaithful Mate?

Science Lists Reactions of 1156 Wives and Husbands

Chicago, June 22 (INS)—Women are more unwilling to forgive infidelity in mates than men.

Murderers and robbers are more often self-sacrificing than average "respectable" citizens.

Many moral acts are performed for immoral reasons.

And it is virtually impossible for young or old people to be moral, because nearly all of their acts are prompted by fear or rage.

These are but a few of the social discoveries announced today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. Emilio Mira of Barcelona, Spain.

They resulted from a series of experiments conducted over the past four years. In some of the experiments individuals who said they had eaten poisoned candy or that they were needed immediately for blood transfusion purposes.

His studies also confirmed other observers who believe that human beings are born without any moral sense.

He found also that persons habitually moral in their love always lapsed into immorality at times.

Even among persons of the highest intelligence and culture, he found that no two ever agreed exactly on what was moral and what was not.

One of the most interesting of Dr. Mira's experiments involved use of a "marriage unfaithfulness test." A total of 378 couples, or 1156 wives and husbands, were made to consider a problem in which Peter, who adores his wife, discovers from a letter that his best friend, Lewis, was on intimate terms with her.

The sex of the "sinners" was never read for the wives' questionnaire. Ten "solutions" were submitted for choice. Here was the result:

	M.	F.	T'l
1—Challenge love, or pull woman friends's hair	40	18	67
2—Kill lover	8	5	13
3—Kill wife (or husband)	21	11	32
4—Revenge by making love to other party's mate	14	23	37
5—Catch lovers and get divorce	187	102	289
6—Separate but live in same house	7	24	31
7—Total private separation	103	185	288
Try to make mate's lover ridiculous	96	143	239
8—Forgive and try win back mate	48	23	71
10—Leave lovers and move away	45	44	89
Totals	578	578	1155

Dr. Mira designated as "surprising" that more women than men had a desire merely to "humiliate" the offending friend.

ENTRIES POUR IN FOR ROLLER SKATE DERBY

Entries for the Boston Evening American roller skating derby next month contine to pour in in large numbers.

We thought this derby would be a popular one with the boys and girls of Boston, as well as their elders but judging from the deluge of entries already received it is going to be even more popular than anticipated.

And why shouldn't it be popular? Every boy and girl in the city likes to roller skate even though the neighbors are not always enthusiastic about their ability to speed along the sidewalk. Well, anyway, boys and girls, you can make all the noise you want as you try to win one of the prizes in the American's derby, finals of which will be run off at the Boston Arena, Massachusetts ave. and St. Botolph st., Back Bay, where the largest roller skating rink in New England is located.

JAFFEE TO BE HERE

The skating derby editor has good news for contestants today—Irving Jaffee, Olympic ice skating champion, now in Montreal, has volunteered to come to Boston on the day of the finals to co-operate in making them a success. Mr. Jaffee will probably serve as one of the judges or as starter. He hopes every boy and girl, man and woman, entered in the American's big tourney will practice faithfully to be in good physical condition for the races.

Through courtesy of George V. Brown, manager of Boston Arena, persons planning to enter the American's races may practice at the Arena this afternoon between 2 and 5 o'clock, next Saturday morning between 9 and 12 and on each succeeding Monday and Thursday afternoon between 2 and 5 p. m. and each Saturday morning from 9 to 12. A nominal fee of ten cents for three hours skating and also the use of Arena skates, the best that can be bought, will be charged. It is expected hundreds of persons will take advantage of this generous offer of Mr. Brown's. The Arena has 20,000 square feet of space to skate on.

And don't forget the costume parade which is to be one of the feature events of the American's derby. As men, women and children contestants in this event skate around the rink, the judges will select those wearing the most attractive or unique costumes and those wearing the funniest for the award of special prizes. Put your brain to work, folks. Your idea may win one of those prizes. There will be no age limit to this colorful event.

WATCH FOR DETAILS

Several additional features are being arranged by this newspaper, but we don't want to tell you everything we have in mind to make the derby successful. Just read the Boston Evening American from day to day for additional details.

Preliminaries of the races will be run off at four Boston parks Saturday afternoon, July 15, and the finals will take place the following Saturday afternoon. Select the park in the list nearest your home and compete there in the preliminaries. If you win there you will be automatically entered in the finals at the Arena. The parks where the preliminaries will be held are Charlesbank playground, Leverett and Cambridge sts., West End; Paris st. playground, East Boston; Strandway, South Boston (roped off area near Columbus Park beach) and Franklin Park Greeting, from entrance to Franklin Park to bird house.

Chairman William P. Long of Boston park commission and other leading officials of that organization are co-operating in a big way to make the American's Derby a success. They are sponsoring another big meet this summer, which it is expected will draw hundreds of contestants.

Clip the coupon on this page, fill it out and mail to the Skating Derby editor. Then all you'll have to do is practice earnestly.

AGE NO LIMIT—IT'S ROLLER SPEED THAT COUNTS

BEA ROBERTSON DOROTHY NEAVIN FRANCES EVERETT

Of course they're entered in the Boston Evening American's Roller Skate Derby. Sure, there's no age limit. As long as you're an amateur and have a pair of roller skates, you are eligible. The fair sex, young and old alike, will vie for honors in the derby. Men and women, boys and girls, will compete in the preliminaries at Boston's parks. Fill out the entry box, and mail it to the Skate Editor at the Boston American, and then shine up those old rollers and give 'em plenty of oil, and you may be one of the derby winners. The fair ones above, doing a little practice are Bea Robertson, Waltham; Dorothy Neavin of Milton, and Frances Everett of Newton. They'll show their speed in the derby if they are lucky enough to win the contest at their home playground. (Boston American Photo.)

Fire Chiefs Elect Tierney as Head

Lewiston, Me., June 22 (AP)—Chief Danile B. Tierney of Arlington, Mass., was elected president of the New England Fire Chiefs' Association at the closing session of the annual convention today.

Vice-presidents named were: John Fach of New Haven St., and Daniel H. DeCourcy of Winchester, Mass. John W. O'Hearn of Watertown, Mass., was re-elected secretary and treasurer. Oliver Sanborn of Portland, Me., and William C. Mahony of Peabody, Mass., were made members of the board of directors, and John J. Kennedy of Bridgeport, sergeant-at-arms.

State vice-presidents chosen were: Joseph W. Randlette, Richmond, Me.; R. D. Stockwell, Burlington, Vt.; Frank F. Dickerson, Brockton, Mass.; Earl Bachelder, Centerdale, R. I., and Henry Taft, Norwich, Ct.

Burlington, Vt., was selected as the next convention city.

Woman Dole Thief Is on Probation

Mrs. Ellen Keough of Putnam st., Charlestown, pleaded guilty today in municipal court to receiving city welfare aid while she was earning money as a janitress. Judge Carr sentenced her to three months in jail and then suspended the sentence and placed her on probation.

Evidence showed Mrs. Keough accepted welfare aid between June 9, 1930, and March, 1931, while she was employed at $12 weekly. She also received $531 compensation during that period from an insurance company for an injury.

RAY TO CARRY VOTE

Thomas Ray, messenger to Gov. Ely, may be selected as the man to carry the formal vote of Massachusetts to Washington, ratifying the 21st Amendment for repeal of the 18th Amendment. That formal vote will be cast next Monday by the 45 wet delegates to the constitutional convention.

CONNERY FACES FIGHT

If conditions "are right," Rep. John A. Jones, of Peabody will contest with Congressman William P. Connery, Jr., of Lynn, for the Democratic nomination to Congress from the 7th district in the 1934 election.

CONGRATULATIONS IN LINE

After Gov. Ely had administered the oath of office as Senator to Charles T. Cavanaugh of Cambridge to fill the unexpired term of Judge Joseph Monahan, of Belmont, he said:

"I congratulate you on having the distinction of serving in both the House and the Senate during the same session of the legislature." Cavanaugh resigned from the House in order to take his seat in the Senate.

To my brothers . . . I owe the pleasure of smoking Luckies

When I first had a desire to smoke, I knew exactly where to start. You see, for years I had heard all the men in the family saying "Luckies Please". They said it was "Toasting" that made Luckies so good. I've never questioned the reason—because I have always found Luckies so fragrant, so mild—and (perhaps a man will smile at this) so pure to my lips! I can smoke lots and lots of them and still find them refreshing to the taste. Now I'm telling my brothers "Luckies Please", and each of them says, "You're telling me?"

because "It's toasted"

WALSH ADMITS FRAUD GUILT

Continuing the campaign to rid the courts of allegedly corrupt practices on the part of lawyers, Judge Crosby of the Supreme Court today heard a petition to disbar Atty. Francis M. Walsh of Marlboro. The case was taken under advisement.

According to the report of Dunbar F. Carpenter, special commissioner appointed by the Supreme Court to investigate fraudulent practices, Walsh was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction last September for conspiracy to defraud with a "framed" accident.

Walsh is suffering from a chronic appendix, and was not in court. He was represented by Atty. William T. McCarthy, who pleaded with the court for a suspension in place of the requested disbarment.

McCarthy pointed out in his argument that Walsh made complete restitution of $320. He admitted Walsh's guilt.

Another disbarment case will be heard tomorrow. The name of the lawyer was not given because the papers were impounded

Bridgeport Noble Granted Divorce

Bridgeport, Ct., June 22 (AP)—Superior Court today granted Serge Alexander Alexeff, scion of a former Russian family and now a Bridgeport chemist, a divorce from Tatiana Alexeff, a Rusian actress and member of the nobility before the revolution.

COCOA MARSHMALLOW CAKE WITH MARSHMALLOW NUT ICING

Part One: Two tablespoons cocoa, ½ cup sweet milk, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 egg yolk. Put these ingredients in a double boiler and cook until well blended. Cool. Part Two: One-half cup shortening, ½ cup sweet milk, 2 cups pastry flour 2 egg whites (well beaten), ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in water, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 egg yolks (unbeaten), vanilla. Cream the shortening, sugar and salt together thoroughly, add the egg yolks and beat in thoroughly. Add part one, the vanilla and mix thoroughly. Add alternately the milk and flour. Fold in egg whites, and last of all the soda dissolved in 1 tablespoon hot water. Bake in two nine-inch layers for about 13 minutes at a 375 oven.

BOSTON TESTED AMERICAN

MARSHMALLOW NUT ICING

Two cups granulated sugar ½ cup boiling water 2 egg whites (well beaten) 12 to 18 marshmallows ½ cup pecans (cut fine). Mix the sugar and water together until it spins a thread. Beat slowly into the beaten egg whites. Cool slightly add the marshmallow (broken in pieces) and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Spread on the cold before it is quite cold and sprinkle chopped pecans over the top.

BOOKS—And a Number of Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

It is astonishing to learn, as one does in reading Henry James Forman's book, "Our Movie-Made Children" (Macmillan), that Dr. Holmes, of the Harvard School of Education, has recently stated that where talking motion pictures supplement the textbook in class, knowledge of students increases from 20 to 40 per cent. Children have been found to retain an average of 70 per cent of what an intelligent adult would carry away from a dramatic film. In many cases, after a lapse of months, the children actually remember more than they remembered directly after seeing the picture.

These are facts; they prove that the pictures have a heavy responsibility. How are they meeting it? No one, in the light of what Mr. Forman so clearly brings forth, can stand aside and say that the movies are a negligible quantity in our social and educational life.

The burden of this book occupies itself with the effect of movies on children. How do they sleep after viewing an exciting story on the screen? It is shown that boys react differently from girls; and, strangely enough, a wild adventure show, full of thrills, creates more restlessness in girls when they fall into slumber. The kids evidently take such excitement for granted. The girls, on the other hand, are emotionally disturbed. An appeal has called the hypnograph recorded innumerable reactions. The results proved startling.

But there are other physical effects which Mr. Forman discusses. A certain picture which had an enormous success frightened children and horrified adults. It caused eleven faintings in a single day, according to the investigations of a trained nurse in a large mid-Western city. Four of the eleven who fainted were men! Cabaret scenes especially drilled and prepared to deal with cases of fainting and hysterical collapse. War films and horror pictures had similar effects on audiences.

A healthy child seeing a picture once in a while will suffer no harm, according to Dr. Frederick Peterson, a noted neurologist. But repeating the stimulation often amounts to emotional debauch. "Scenes causing terror and fright are sowing the seeds in the system for future neuroses and psychoses—nervous disorders."

Surveys have been made among children of all ages, and the findings do not always make pleasant reading. For instance:

"Large percentages of girl inmates in an institution for sex delinquents rightly or wrongly attribute to the movies a leading place in stimulating cravings for an easy life, for luxury, for cabarets, roadhouses and wild parties for having men make love to them and, ultimately, for their particular delinquency. Male delinquents, likewise, testify to using certain types of movies as excitants for arousing and stimulating the passions of girls. The Thrasher survey of a congested area contains similar evidence. As a mass form of entertainment this obviously has social consequences highly undesirable.

"Religious and moral pictures are frequently cited by school children as moving them to 'do good things,' and even in a state training school for delinquent girls seventy per cent of the girls declared that religious and sentimental movies had at times made them 'want to be real good.' The impulse in nearly all these cases, however, was found to be of exceedingly brief duration."

Mr. Forman has made a careful study of the pictures, and W. W. Charters, chairman of the Committee on Educational Research of the Payne Fund, vouches for his accuracy. He shows how in crowded sections, the movies have a particularly evil effect. Children who emerge from such areas often become murders, gunmen, racketeers and bootleggers. But here the large foreign element must be taken into consideration

HE WROTE HER A LOVE POEM IN HOSPITAL

He did the washing the family ironing, he scrubbed the floors and made the beds. And in between he wrote poems in praise of his wife.

And yet Mrs. Rose C. Allen was denied alimony to him. Edward F. Allen of Lynn testified in his suit for divorce in Salem court today.

Spectators marveled at how any woman could be cold to such a paragon of husbandly excellence as testimony revealed Allen to be. But Allen [illegible] testimony said his wife's coldness had cost him two jobs and was ruining the health and happiness.

The tribulation Allen was had not by himself but by the wife who is contesting the divorce.

WASHED HER CLOTHES

Admitting coldly that she still "absolutely detested" her husband Mrs. Allen said she would feel [illegible] regret if he wouldn't come back to her.

Mrs. Allen said of being in a Boston hospital and as her husband visited her every day and brought her food and other gifts, including a [illegible] Why there, she said, he washed them and returned them four times.

When she returned home, she testified he did the washing, ironing, [illegible] and heavy household [illegible] because doctors told him he would have to treat her "like a baby for at least six years."

He even got on the floor at the radiator [illegible] and they were very happy together.

Testimony in addition to loving letters and gifts came to her when her husband was on the road for a jewelry concern, she said and in one letter Allen stated:

"I could kiss you all night."

LOVE POEM READ

Mrs. Allen denied that her husband's statement that he had not written to her when she was in the hospital and she identified a poem as one Allen wrote at that time.

The poem was dramatically read by Medley T. Holdsworth, her counsel:

"Dearest one of all my heart. Of my life itself you are a part, I think, I dream, I pray for thee. Just as I hope you do for me."

A statement under the poem read "written by Eddie."

Recalled to the stand Allen denied he ever kicked his wife but said he pushed her at times. A back eye she received may have been inflicted by his elbow when he warded her off as she attempted to scratch him, he said.

On cross-examination he admitted he had a violent temper and said he had a quarrel with his wife on the night she received the injured eye.

NOT FOR SIX WEEKS

"That wasn't one of the nights you could have lived her all night?" queried the attorney.

"No sir."

Q.—And that wasn't one of the nights you could have kissed her all night? A.—No sir.

Q.—But you made up later. A.—Yes, but not for six weeks.

Q.—And you gave her plenty of kisses after that? A.—Yes sir.

Allen said he washed his wife's clothes while she was in the hospital and he also did the household work.

"You thought quite a lot of your wife, didn't you?" Holdsworth asked.

"I always did," Allen answered.

Allen said he left his wife April 1 this year.

Pleading for dismissal, Holdsworth said it was his firm belief the couple would be back together in a short time. The husband's attorney pleaded that the divorce be granted, saying it was impossible for him to continue living with such a jealous woman.

The judge reserved decision.

Professors to Call on 'Cannibal Gents'

New York, June 22 (AP)—Two professors are going to call on "gentlemanly cannibals" of southern Ecuador, Richard C. Gill explorer, in announcing that Profs. Julius A. Stratton and E. P. Allis would soon go into the country of the Jivaro head hunters, said the Jivaros are "really gentlemen" and will do no harm to an explorer if he behaves himself.

Strikers Order 'Red Flame' Out of Salem

Anne Burlak, so-called "Red Flame," leader in the strike at the Pequot Mills in Salem, was told to "leave the city" today by members of the strikers committee. A group of workers told Mayor Bates they were tired of being ridiculed for permitting her to attend meetings.

Barbara Hutton Mobbed at Church Ceremony

Paris, June 22 (AP)—A surging crowd which broke through police lines jostled Barbara Woolworth Hutton and Prince Alexis Mdivani of Georgia when they were married in a religious ceremony today in the Russian cathedral church of Paris.

A crowd of several thousand swayed and almost broke police lines when the bride arrived with her father, Franklin L. Hutton of New York. Blows were exchanged by some members of the crowd. When the ceremony was over the crowd finally broke through the police lines and mussed the costly bridal costume worn by Barbara.

The granddaughter of the late Frank W. Woolworth and the Georgian prince were united in a civil marriage two days ago in the city hall of the Passy district of Paris.

The religious rites were conducted by the High Priest Smirnoff, assisted by three other priests, and were solemnized by the pretty quaint exchange of rings, and the "crowning" rites of the Russian Orthodox service.

By a marriag contract signed before the ceremony, the bride who is one of the richest heiresses in America retains control and disposition of her fortune, estimated at 20,000,000.

DEADLY BOMB IN SOLON'S AUTO

Watseka, N. I. June 22 (AP)—A 12-pound bomb containing what experts described as "the most deadly explosive in the world" was found today attached to the automobile of Rep. Charles A. Eaton of the Fifth Congressional District.

When the bomb was found by Joseph Salem, an employe of Eaton, the latter was uncertain whether it was real or merely the work of a practical joker.

"If it be a bomb," he said, "I feel it was not directed against me so much as against the United States Government."

The machine was made of what looked like part of a compressor pump and was about 12 inches long and 5 inches in diameter, and had been placed under the hood of the automobile. From the front of the car a wire dangled.

Malden-Melrose Gas Probe Bill Is Killed

Adverse reports of the legislative committee on power and light on two petitions calling for an investigation of the rates being charged by the Malden and Melrose Gas Light Co. were accepted today by the Senate.

Under one bill the probe would have been conducted by the State Department of Public Utilities. The other called for a joint investigation by the utilities department and the division on the necessaries of life.

SUSPECT WINS SANITY TEST

Judge Fosdick today allowed counsel for Tony A. Buffa of Lynn, on trial in Salem Superior Court for the murder of Patrolman Francis V. Quinn of Lynn, funds for two alienists on a motion by Atty. William B. McSweeney.

Dr. Guy C. Randall and Dr. Edgar C. Cathcart both of the Danvers State Hospital were related Buffa is on trial with Edward Cullen of Salem and Joseph Screw of Cambridge.

For the fifth time in two days the jury was excluded as government witnesses were ready to testify to alleged statements made by Joseph Screw when he was questioned in Lynn police headquarters a few hours after the shooting.

The request that they be withdrawn was made by Atty. Patten for Screw, who said he believed the testimony about to be given constituted a confession and therefore was not admissable. A preliminary examination was made of the witnesses with the jury absent, but they were allowed to hear the evidence on their return when the court overruled Patten's objections.

629,000 More Men Given Employment

Washington, June 22 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor, in its monthly survey of business, says that through April and May more than 629,000 men have been put back to work. The May figures showed 12,750,000 out of work. June figures are not yet available.

SALES TAX QUIZ IS DELAYED

Due to lack of attendance, the Legislative Committee on Taxation today postponed until next week the public hearing on the retail sales tax proposed by Governor Ely to finance the borrowing of $30,000,000 under the Federal industrial recovery act.

Daniel Bloomfield, representing the Retail Sales Board, when questioned by Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., of the committee, said his organization was still opposed.

Roosevelt Sails On After Seeing Grandchild

En route with the President at Sea, June 22 (AP)—President Roosevelt sailed out of Little Harbor, Portsmouth, at 11:40 a. m., today for a run to Portland, which he expects to reach before nightfall.

After sleeping late, Mr. Roosevelt received his little granddaughter, Sara Lelano Roosevelt, before getting forth.

The mouth of the harbor was filled with small pleasure craft as the Amberjack slowly made its way out for the leisurely cruise off the Maine coast.

In Portland, John and Franklin D. Jr., younger sons of the President will join the crew and complete the trip up the coast to Campobello Island, N. B., site of the Roosevelt summer home.

The President's granddaughter was taken aboard the Amberjack by her father, James, and her mother. James has been a member of the crew since the start and continued on to Portland. The child and her mother left the boat and returned to their summer home in Eye Beach, a few miles from where.

PUBLIC WORKS PLANS RUSHED

Washington, June 22 (AP)—President Roosevelt's public works board today informed the nation that "we are proceeding as rapidly as possible" to see flowing the $3,300,000,000 appropriation for construction activities by Congress.

See Ickes, chairman of the cabinet board, will be in charge while under him will be the public works administrator.

To handle applications of state county and city projects there will be a state administrator and an advisory board to be appointed the President.

Coast Guards Fail to Find Vessel

Fears for the safety of the fishing schooner Sawdust Sally were increased today when coast guardmen of Woods Hole station reported they could find no trace of her. Distress calls from the schooner were reported Tuesday morning by the Sandwich coast guard station, relayed from the schooner D. H. Willard.

What Makes a Safe Tire? . . . I KNOW!

THE MASTERPIECE OF TIRE CONSTRUCTION

ARE you willing to risk your life on advertising statements claiming blowout-proof and unblowable tires? One manufacturer gives as the reason for claiming blowout-proof tires—the use of one ply of another color—another, a patented "no breaker" construction—a mail order house, high stretch "elastic" cords, etc., etc. Actually the fundamental cause of a tire blowout is the flexing of the tire which causes friction of the fibers in the cord, resulting in heat and causing the rubber to soften and the cords to deteriorate.

There is a reason why Firestone Tires have won the 500-mile Indianapolis race for 14 consecutive years, the most gruelling tire test. The reason is the Firestone patented extra process of Gum-Dipping which saturates every fiber and insulates every cord with pure rubber—which gives strength to the cords and prevents friction and heat in the fibers. This year 42 drivers in this race equipped their cars with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires and not a single driver had any tire trouble.

Race drivers know why Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires are safer and not subject to blowout and will not risk their lives on ordinary tires. Your life and the lives of your family are often in danger at the high road speeds of today and you should not take greater risks than the race drivers who make sure that they have the best and safest tires they can buy—Firestone.

Come in today. We will give you a liberal trade-in allowance for your old tires on new Firestone High Speed Tires—the safest tires in the world.

See Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires made in the Firestone Factory and Exhibition Building at "A Century of Progress" Chicago.

Harvard's Honor for Al Smith Probably Most Popular One

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

R. E. ROGERS

EVERY YEAR there are two or three among the scads of honorary degrees which our colleges distribute that catch the popular imagination. This is particularly true this year, when the selections seem to have been governed by inspired mediocrity and the honors bestowed on the same. The one bright spot in this annual orgy of honorific titles is that the academic bodies seem to be going rather slow on the really important degrees, that of Doctor of Laws and Doctor of Letters, and rewarding the lesser lights with the lesser and more appropriate degree, that of Master of Arts.

In contrast, the open secret that today Harvard University honors itself in honoring Alfred E. Smith, stirs widespread public interest. Not that he needs it, to be sure. Although he cannot count to his credit that stupendous string of LL. Ds which Mr. Hoover collected almost automatically, he has enough of them to make a respectable catch. For honorary degrees are a little like corporation directorships and trusteeships of philanthropic bodies. To him that hath . . . !

Now Harvard Bows to "Raddio"

Proud as "Al" Smith may be of his first degree, which on a famous occasion he awarded to himself, the F. F. M.—Fulton Fish Market—yet such recognition as Harvard is offering him cannot but be pleasant. For political prestige no longer automatically carries with it academic honor, as once it did. There was a time when Harvard gave a degree to every President and every governor of the Commonwealth. That latter tradition was broken when the time came to bestow a degree on Governor Ben Butler and has never been revived.

There will be people of tender sensibilities and petrified prejudices who will look askance at this honor to "Al" Smith, will "wail their eyes"—to use Plupy Shute's famous phrase—will hold up their anguished mitts to high Heaven, in wonder that a man who says "raddio" should be admitted to the company of men with the Harvard accent.

They will, perhaps, remember that about 100 years ago a very famous old Massachusetts "die-hard" refused to attend the Harvard commencement at which President Andrew Jackson was to be awarded an LL. D., on the ground that "the man is an illiterate barbarian, who cannot write a sentence of grammar nor even spell correctly." But President Andrew Jackson received his degree and ex-President John Quincy Adams stayed away. It is doubtful whether anyone will stay away this year for such a reason, though eyebrows may be raised on Beacon Hill.

One does not, of course, have to seek far to ask why this honor—probably the most valued degree in the United States—should go to Alfred E. Smith. To be sure, it probably indicates that for all practical purposes his career in national politics is ended. Were he still an active aspirant for the presidency it is doubtful if Harvard would so distinguish him.

First Citizen of the United States

But this very retirement from practical politics makes him eligible for another title, not elective but granted by what one might call spontaneous public opinion. It is this unofficial title that Harvard is ratifying today. The First Citizen of the United States!

Charles William Eliot held that title for many years, both by the custom of the press and by the tribute of public opinion. There is no doubt that Calvin Coolidge held it briefly from the time of his retirement from the presidency to his death. There is equally no doubt that merely being an ex-President does not confer it on a man. Grover Cleveland never held it, nor did Theodore Roosevelt, for Prexy Eliot outlived him and, popular as he was, he never threatened that Olympian eminence. And no one except the blindest partisan would assert that our only living former President has any claim to the title.

But, press and public alike, the question, "Who is our most distinguished private citizen?" would be answered with one name only.

That, I take it, is why Harvard honors "Al" Smith today.

In addition there is perhaps an interesting supporting reason. The retiring president of Harvard was professionally a student of the science of government. His book on "Governments and Parties of Continental Europe" ranked almost with Bryce's "The American Commonwealth." For years he headed the department of history and government in Cambridge. As president, he is said to have especially cherished and fostered that department.

It is only to be expected, then, that he has kept his eye on the man who, by universal consent, is recognized as our greatest practical authority on democratic government, a profound student of its theory and machinery, a highly successful executive in manipulating it for the ends he believed in, a liberal administration for the benefit of the people as a whole.

A Master of Government

Withal, he has been recognized as essentially a practical conservative, in no sense of the word a radical. One might even make a kind of sum in rule-of-three out of it. As Harvard is to Columbia, so Smith and his advisers are to Roosevelt and his advisers. The President could not have found his present advisers at Harvard. Harvard in honoring Smith, honors in him something which is part and parcel of her own tradition. You may call it practical, progressive conservatism.

In offering this degree, President Lowell, therefore, merely confirms an opinion handed down some years ago by those two eminent experts in the science of government, Elihu Root and Charles Evans Hughes. Both were Republicans, both were corporation lawyers. Smith was a Democrat who kept himself free of the corporations. But both were New Yorkers, and they recognized Smith as the man who, almost single-handed, made over the government of New York, forced the provisions of the reformed constitution on a reluctant and powerful Assembly, and inch by inch, over a period of eight years, organized, systematized and liberalized the machinery of the Empire State.

He, more than any other individual, is the symbol of that slow, steady and powerful force of public opinion which is repealing the Eighteenth Amendment and restoring our traditional belief in the separation of church and state. For over a decade he argued and organized against prohibition, until the movement for repeal came to crystalize around him. He stands forth pre-eminent as a liberal, in the good old sense of the word, which means more individual freedom not in the warped and twisted new sense of the word which means less.

Almost one would wish to have Eliot back again, to hear the sonorous phrases with which he would characterize this man. But most likely Eliot wouldn't have offered him a degree. The honor is Lowell's.

50 Years Out -:- They'll Hit 37 All the Way -:- And Never Catch a Crab

For 50 years now, Harvard's crew of '83 hasn't missed a stroke. Every June these oarsmen are back on the Charles. Today it was not exactly the same boat that left Yale taking its swell—19 lengths behind—but where a varsity man was missing a member of the class crew took his seat. And '83 was the heyday of Harvard's class rowing. Debs then lined the river to watch the intramural regatta. Maybe the house plan will revive that some day.

Storm and Fog Battled in Search for Youth

Hampered by fog and a 50-mile gale on the snow-capped mountain heights, search for Simon L. Joseph, 20, Brookline, Harvard sophomore lost on Mt. Washington Sunday, was resumed today as hope for his life dwindled Forest rangers, woodsmen and guides took part in the hunt, while airplanes stood by on the Twin Mountain airport waiting for the fog to lift and permit them to aid.

On hand were the two companions of the missing youth, who have refused to leave the mountain since his disappearance. They are Charles W. Robinson of Framingham, Harvard freshman, and Gerald Golden of Nottingham rd, Brighton, Tech sophomore

ACT AS MARKERS

When the fog lifts the boys, flanked by rangers, will take positions at the spot where they last saw Joseph, to act as human markers for the aviators.

A special train went up the mountain on the cog railway early today, carrying 18 volunteers to aid in the search.

They were headed by Asst. State Forester Hale and Selectman Smith of Carroll. The searching parties are making their headquarters at Lake in the Clouds

Experienced woodsmen, guides and foresters pointed out that with only two blankets and no food, hunger and exhaustion had probably overtaken the youth by this time They believed it hardly possible that he had been able to stand the rigors of the icy blasts which have been prevalent there.

LINES DOWN

A storm early today which wrecked telephone communication in the vicinity of the mountain, was also pointed out as hindering the youth's chances to survive if he were still alive

Today's searching party was augmented by 35 rangers, who arrived last night and slept at the Lake of the Clouds hut In addition there were many volunteers from various nearby New Hampshire communities

The missing youth's parents, Mr and Mrs. Louis Joseph, who reached the mountain yesterday after an all-night trip from Boston, are still buoyed by the hope their son is alive They spent the night at the Summit House and awoke early today, still refusing to give up hope the boy would be found alive.

Last night the father expressed the opinion his son may have made his way down the mountain safely but feared he might now be suffering from amnesia due to exposure

INDUSTRIES ARE ON UPGRADE

Wage increases and the unusual boom in supply commodities in anticipation of new taxes and rising prices were believed today to be responsible for the more than 10 per cent increase in factory payrolls in Massachusetts during May, as compared with April.

Figures for the past several years of the Massachusetts department of labor and industries show an average decline of 2.7 in factory payrolls each May, as compared with April.

The upward swing in industrial figures was accompanied by a similar rise in the trucking, handling and wholesale business, instead of the usual seasonal declines Many other basic industries also followed this lead, it was reported

Massachusetts retail trades showed a slight seasonal drop of 1.1 per cent, but on the other hand wholesale establishments, showing increased orders in anticipation of rising commodity prices, had an average increase of 1.2 per cent.

Of the 1120 factories and mills reporting the number of workers increased 4 per cent, while average weekly earnings jumped 6.7 per cent Nine of the state's 11 largest cities reported improvement in total factory payrolls.

Al Smith Rides in Glory to Harvard Exercises

Right through Harvard in little more than an hour, "Al" Smith went today, and emerged Dr. Alfred E. Smith as the peak of a day in Boston and Cambridge turned into a personal triumph for him

The former governor of New York and former Democratic candidate for President, had the honorary degree of doctor of laws conferred upon him by Harvard—but even then he refused to become too serious.

AUTOGRAPHS ON CUFFS

After the degree had been conferred upon him and he had gone to have a bite of lunch, a bevy of pretty waitresses, led by Sally Murphy, of Brookline, and Helen McLeland, of Medford, descended upon him and asked him to autograph their white collars and cuffs

The governor grinned and ruined considerable linen, so far as daily utility is concerned, with his signature in heavy ink.

"Now what are you going to do with this signature when they go to the laundry?" he asked one of the girls.

"They're not going to the laundry," the girls cheroused, and trooped back to work.

Dr. Smith was the chief center of interest at the luncheon party and his attempts to chat comfortably with Lincoln Kirstein, Leverett Saltonstall and other notables was constantly interrupted by visitors who shook his hand and offered congratulations and good wishes.

THE READY ANSWER

On the way over to Harvard, from the State House, the governor had had a bit of repartee with a taxi driver, it was revealed The taxi driver, realizing the significance of the police and military escort and then recognizing Smith in an open automobile, veered his cab up almost alongside and shouted:

"H'yar, Doc!"

Al Smith leaned over and cried back:

"You're an honorary brother."

Up betimes in their suits at the Copley-Plaza, the Smith party breakfasted early, and in fact had finished by the time Gov. Ely, whose guest Al Smith was, appeared for his morning meal. The governor ate it alone in the grill room.

Shortly before 9 a. m., Prof. Arthur N. Holcombe, professor of government at Harvard, appeared at the hotel in cap and gown, representing Harvard and prepared to escort the "Happy Warrior" to Cambridge. With Prof. Holcombe was Mayor Richard M. Russell of Cambridge, arrayed in silk topper cutaway and morning trousers, the same as the Smith and Ely garb

Smith appeared in the lobby and greeted Dr. Holcombe, with whom he posed for photographers. Then Gov. Ely appeared and the four went out of the hotel, accompanied by Mrs. Smith and other women of the party.

Out on the sidewalk, Al Smith said to Prof. Holcombe,

"You've got a splash of color about you, Doctor. You get in the back seat in the middle and the Governor and I will get on each side of you."

Dr. Holcombe's gown was lined with crimson silk, the color flashing with every step.

CROWD CHEERS 'WARRIOR'

They climbed into the back seat of an open car in this order, while Mayor Russell got in the front seat with the driver.

A throng of several hundred persons gathered in Copley sq. cheered the appearance of Smith when he came out of the hotel and the crowd cheered again at Al's wave of his silk topper when the cars started. The party started for the State House at 9 a. m. with four motorcycle officers as escort

The trip to the State House took only five minutes, and here all work was practically suspended while pretty stenographers, clerks and the other help poured into the corridors to get a glimpse of Al.

There were approximately three score girls near the elevator on the third floor when the Smith party alighted, and they broke into applause, which was acknowledged with a typical Smith grin and a few words, which were lost in the din—and a raising again of the

Morgan and Gene Talk Shakespeare

J. Pierpont Morgan was discovered at Harvard Commencement exercises today in animated conversation with "Gene" Tunney, former heavyweight champion. And the conversation was not about banking or boxing, but about Shakespeare. Gov. Wilbur L. Cross, who received an honorary degree, and Prof. George Kittredge, Shakespearian authority, were the referees of the discussion on the Bard of Avon.

Labor Leaders at Doyle Services

Labor leaders and persons prominent in the garment industry today attended funeral services in Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Jamaica Plain, for Frank A. Doyle, long a member of the executive board of the United Garment Workers of America. Doyle died suddenly Sunday. He is survived by his wife, two daughters and a son. Burial in Holyhood Cemetery, Brookline

So Oarsmen Die Young? How About Harvard's '83 Crew?

They're 50 years out of college but the Harvard class of 1883 put a crew on the river today.

It wasn't the famous varsity crew that defeated Yale by 19 lengths in their senior year, and it wasn't the class crew that swept the river for four years, in the days when Boston debutantes lined the river to watch the class crews go by and the class regatta was one of Harvard's biggest sport events, but it had members of both crews on it.

And they left the Weld boathouse this morning for a workout

Names famous in Harvard rowing history and famous in the history of the world for the past 50 years were in the lineup. Charles P. Perin of New York is captain, as he has been of everyone of the reunion crews of his class—and they have had one at every gathering since 1883

CURTIS AT STROKE

The stroke was Charles P. Curtis, former Boston police commissioner, and father of a member of the Harvard Corp. He rowed on both class and varsity crews in college.

Picking up the beat behind him was H. B. Jacobs, Baltimore doctor. No. 6 was Perin, No. 5 was Dr. Sumner Coolidge, of Middleboro, a class caesman who has never missed this reunion. Four was R. S. Codman, Boston real estate man

Three was Joseph Lee, of Boston, who for three years held that position on the class crew in college. Behind him was Horace Binney of Boston.

SANGER IS COXWAIN

Bow was W. H. Page of New York, who topped off his rowing career by becoming a member of the New York Athletic Club crew, and one of that organization's best amateur wrestlers.

At the tiller ropes was S. P. Sanger of Brookline, who for three years showed his back to the Yale crew down the long stretch of the Thames river at New London which leads to the finish line and victory.

What's all this about oarsmen and heart failure? Ask '83, Harvard's most famous rowing class.

LONG APPLAUSE GREETS HONOR PAID TO SMITH

President Lowell, on Retiring, Confers Many Degrees

Harvard closed one of the most colorful pages in her 297 years of history making at the 298th commencement exercises in Sever quadrangle, where 2148 students received their degrees today

This commencement marked the passing of President A. Lawrence Lowell into retirement after 25 years as head of the university

It marked the recognition of a man whose alma mater was the sidewalks of New York, whose graduate school was the Fulton Fish Market—the Hon. Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York, and Democratic presidential candidate in 1928.

TRADITIONAL CEREMONY

The National Lancers, traditional escort of Massachusetts governors to the annual exercises, in uniforms of red and blue, stood in the background

Like a woodcut from Colonial history, Joseph McElroy, deputy sheriff of Middlesex county, opened the ceremonies as required under the charter of the college. John R. Fairbairn, sheriff, who has opened the commencement for the last 33 years, was too ill to attend

McElroy was dressed in a claw-hammer coat white vest, black trousers, black silk hat, and wore a sword hanging from a leather and gold belt.

Army and navy officers in full dress deans and proctors in their mediaeval robes of office, ambassadors with their decorations, and a rainbow of color that was the alumni and guests completed the brilliant spectacle

Shortly before 10 o'clock, the National Lancers, members of the National Guard cavalary, rode up to the Harvard yard, followed by a car honoring Gov. Ely, "Al" Smith and Mrs. Smith

And side by side, through a lane of applauding thousands, a Lowell talked to a Smith because both can talk to God.

Led by the First Corps Cadet band, the procession marched through the yard to Sever Quadrangle. Pres. Lowell and the Fellows were in the van, followed by the recipients to be of honorary degrees

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS

Among the invited guests in addition to the recipients of honorary degrees were Lieut.-Gov. Gaspar Bacon, '08; Mayor Richard M. Russell, '18, of Cambridge; Acting Mayor Joseph McGrath, of Boston.

Hon. Robert M. Luce, '82, representative from the ninth district; Judge J. M. Morton, '91, of the U. S.

"GOLD DIGGERS OF 1933" FILM WILL HAVE GALA PREMIERE AT MAJESTIC TONIGHT

Balloons to Carry Free Tickets for Latest of Screen's Musical Vehicles

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Few musical films have so whetted the public's appetite for its coming as "Gold Diggers of 1933." This is the first to come of Hollywood's "remakes," which word refers to its being a brand new edition of that extravaganza of the early days of the sound cinema. The unabashed hullyhoo began last winter with the triumphant reception accorded "42nd Street," first of the de luxe musicals from the coast. That picture, the box office hit of the year and still making money in smaller houses, paved the way for popular attention to center upon the Warners' next, "Gold Diggers . . .

We have had, through past months, requests by phone and mail for news as to the release of "Gold Diggers." So many persons have been heard discussing it, that we began to feel that its virtual world be of real news importance, so far as the motion picture lovers go. Tonight is the night; it has its premiere at the Majestic, where colorful program is promised to mark the Boston debut of what is acclaimed as the most spectacular musical picture to date. The usual throng of notables is to be on hand, city and state officials, film folk and so on

Warren William

The enterprising Joe Saxe, handling the publicity and exploitation, informs us of a special feature for this evening. By arrangement of Thomas Spry, New England manager for Warner Bros., and Philip Smith, widely known New England theater operator, Acting Mayor Joseph McGrath is to make it possible for 100 persons to see "Gold Diggers" free

"The method is this," said Mr. Saxe. "The acting mayor will release at the theater 1000 golden balloons, which will be permitted to sail away over the city. Of these balloons one-tenth hold passes good for any night or day of the run of the show.

"It is up to the captors of the balloons—the passes are inside."

One may here pay tribute to a Bostonian for his expert handing of a big job. Usually such events are handled by outside talent, but Mr Saxe efficient always, measures up to past performances of others in every way. In some ways his campaign is unique as thousands know from the myriad golden gewgaws being passed around in advance of the showing.

The film's advent is distinctly a sign of good times. "42nd Street" packed all the major houses at which it was shown here, and everywhere else, too; "Gold Diggers" looks sure to duplicate, or do even better. The Warners have installed in the Majestic the latest in sound equipment, known as the wide range reproduction, heralded as giving best results as yet obtainable

Gold Diggers" will have a host of stars, plenty of minor players and a big chorus, but we ask you to note particularly the direction and camera wizardry of Mervyn Le Roy, one of the ablest directors at Hollywood. His hand work always shines.

Diana Wins

SERIOUS FOR THE MOMENT

Sylvia Sidney has a serious talk with Donald Cook in "Jennie Gerhardt," Theodore Dreiser story in film form, at the Metropolitan tomorrow.

Globe Trotter

Highlights of the National Open Golf Tournament, at Glenview, Ill., are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, now at Loews Orpheum. Johnny Goodman, the sensational young player of Omaha, is pictured finishing his round, which was to bring him a title, with a par on the last hole. To tie him, Ralph Guldahl, of St. Louis, has to also make the hole in par. With his ball only four feet from the cup and a huge gallery watching him breathlessly, Guldahl putts—and misses, making Goodman the champion. The Globe Trotter describes the thrilling plays of the match.

President Roosevelt again talks to the nation in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News at Loew's State. The Chief Executive explains his stand concerning the war debts. The President impressively emphasizes that the acceptance of a partial payment on the interest due is to be considered "as an acknowledgment of the debt pending final settlement. Continuing, he says

"I want to make it clear that the Economic Conference now being held in London does not include in its program any consideration of the debts owed by various governments to the United States. The American delegates have been instructed not to discuss debts with the representatives of any of the debtor governments."

Miriam Hopkins on Screen at Bowdoin

The Bowdoin today has "The Shame of Temple Drake," with Miriam Hopkins, Jack Larue and William Collier, Jr. The associate film of equal value is "Picture Snatcher," with James Cagney, Six acts of standard vaudeville are on the bill. On Friday night Sam Cohen and his amateurs are added

Gayety Theater

The Gayety today has new vaudeville and feature pictur. On the screen will be "The Ke hole," with Kay Francis, George Bren Glenda Farrell and Allen Jenkins, and "The Midnigh Warning," with William Boyd and Claudia Dell. Five vaudeville acts make up the remainder of the bill.

'Bit' Part Won Her Chance

By HARRIS MORGAN

A "bit" part won Jean Parker her big chance. If you saw "Rasputin" last winter, you noted an unnamed lass who was outstanding, even among the Barrymores and Diana Wynyard. She didn't have much to do; but there was something about her that caused us, in our review of the film, to call special attention to her. Fear she won over the nation centred Hollywood attention on her, and they singled her out for a contract. So now she comes in the Columbia production, "What Price Innocence?", featured at Keith's Saturday.

Willard Mack, famous playwright and director, when looking about for talent, remembered that unnamed lass. He gave her a special test for a role in mind, and then put her in the cast.

The playwright stamps little Jean as a real "find."

"She's got everything—everything," he says. "She handles the most dramatic roles with the ease and finish of a veteran. Lighter moods come naturally to her. She is one of the rare little players who seem to know instinctively what to do, how to do it and when to do it. Given another year or two in pictures —and she'll be right at the top."

Mack directed the picture and grew increasingly enthusiastic over his choice for the difficult role.

"It was one that could make or break the production," he said

Pops Tonight

The following program is announced by Arthur Fiedler for the Pop concert in Symphony Hall tonight:

"The Cat and the Fiddle" Selection Kern

"Bear Rose," Waltz Tchaikowsky "Wedding March" from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" Mendelssohn

Funny Team on Met Bill

One of the funniest comedy teams on the air, The Funny Boners, composed of Dave Grant, Gordon Graham and Sunny Conaghlin, return to the old home town as the special stage attraction at the Metropolitan for next Sunday only

Dave was born in Newton, 28 years ago. After spending three years at Technology, Dave went to the New England Conservatory where he attempted to master the art of reading music. He next organized a band which went "flat" in Duluth, Minn. having the young musician stranded and broke. He managed to get back to Boston, mingling with him Sunny Coughlin, vocalist, in the luckless band. Turning to radio the boys started singing and much to their own amusement "clicked."

Feminine Touch

The story of "Maedchen in Uniform," held over for a third week at the Fine Arts, was written by a woman, the film itself was directed by a woman, and the players are all women and girls.

The story relates the experiences of the authoress, Christa Winsloe, as a child. She is a German, by birth and training, but the daughter of a Scotchman, and the wife of a Hungarian nobleman.. Her father was a German cavalry officer, although of Scottish birth. As a child she lived in Darmstadt, where, her father was in command of the troops of the Grand Duke of Hesse, and later, after the death of her mother, she was enrolled in the Prussian boarding school for girls of the aristocracy such as is shown in the film. Eight years ago she divorced her husband and carved out a career for herself as a sculptress.

Star Without Beauty Tips

Ruth Donnelly, who adds a touch of spicy comedy to William Powell's latest starring picture for Warner Bros., "Private Detective 62," now showing at the Paramount and Fenway Theaters, is one screen actress who denies having any beauties secrets.

When asked what she did to keep herself beautiful, she replied.

"What do you mean beauty? I'm a character actress."

In "Private Detective 62" she dons horn rim glasses and plasters her hair down flat to make herself as homely as possible for her role as an efficient secretary to the head of a private detective agency.

HURLEY LASHES BANKERS FOR HOME LOANS

State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley made a vitriolic attack upon bankers of the state today before the Legislative committee on banks and banking.

Hurley spoke in favor of the recommendation of Gov. Ely, in a special message to the Legislature, for enactment of a law authorizing the banks to exchange mortgages held by them for securities of the Federal Home Loan Bank to prevent further foreclosures and give relief to small home owners in financial distress.

RECALLS OWN EFFORTS

The treasurer alluded to his own efforts several years ago to have such a plan put in the Federal statutes and charged that his advocacy of the plan was denounced by the bankers as unnecessary at [illegible] and dangerous to the banking institutions.

"Well, despite the fact that the legislation then was not adopted some of the banks did close and I say here and now that if the legislation had gone through the banks never would have had to close their doors," he declared.

"DAY OF RECKONING"

"As for the bankers, this is their day of reckoning. It is they who have been responsible for the present situation. They refused to cooperate with the legislation which has been passed. Now they must take it."

Hurley urged the committee to incorporate a provision for the creation of a state board of three members to whom property owners could appeal in the event that a bank declined to assist them through the provisions of the federal legislation.

J. P. MORGAN DR. BARBOUR PRESIDENT LOWELL

FOR THE 293TH TIME HARVARD CONFERS DEGREES

Harvard yard was a blaze of color this morning. Crimson banners crackled over green ivy as the black-robed academic procession passed University Hall and the statue of John Harvard on its way to Sever quadrangle where the 297th commencement exercises were held. Marshal of the senior class was Robert Saltonstall of Boston (center). Among the alumni was J. P. Morgan (left). Candidate for an honorary LL.D. degree was Alfred Emmanuel Smith of New York. But all eyes were on Abbott Lawrence Lowell (right), retiring after 25 years as president of the University. Chatting with him is Dr. Thomas Barbour, director of the museum.

ADMIRES ELY'S OFFICE

In the executive chamber, Gov. Ely said:

"This is the first time you've been here, isn't it?"

"Yes," Smith replied, "and you've got a much finer executive office than they have over in New York."

Ely pointed out the huge glass chandelier, which is a show piece in the executive chamber, and then DeWitt C. DeWolfe, the governor's secretary, commented that the governor's chair was one presented him by friends.

The former New York governor said that the New York, the state presents a chair to the governor for each term.

"I've got four of them now," he said, "enough for me and my sons."

The party then stepped out on a balcony and looked down over the State House lawn, over Boston Common and across town. It was a colorful spectacle, for down in Beacon st., lined up and awaiting the exit of the party, were the 101th Cavalry, M. N. G.—the famous Lancers—in uniforms of red, and nearly 1000 civilians who cheered when Smith appeared on the balcony.

At 9:20 a. m. the party left the State House—by the front way, instead of the rear, where they had entered—climbed into the waiting cars and started down Beacon st. for Cambridge under escort of the Lancers, who, for years, have escorted the Governor of Massachusetts to Harvard graduation exercises.

The bugle corps trumpeted "Hail to the Chief" as the party came down the State House steps, and the last strains died as the cars moved away.

The former New York governor spent the night in the Copley-Plaza after a reception that strung out from Back Bay station to the Smith suite in the hotel.

Politics were strictly taboo on the present visit, although his first greeting to Governor's Councillor Daniel H. Coakley indicated a [illegible] at the New York award of federal patronage under the Roosevelt administration.

With the inevitable cigar in the corner of his mouth, Smith stepped from the train with Mrs. Smith, their daughter, Mrs. John A. Warner, and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Mooney, close friends.

Maj. John Warner, husband of the former New York governor's daughter, greeted the party at the train with [illegible] son of the governor, and Mrs. Richard Ely; DeWitt C DeWolfe, Gov. Ely's secretary, and Councillor Coakley.

"The same old station; the same old city," Smith recalled. "I could tell I was in Boston as soon as the train halted."

Pressed for comment on current events, Gov. Smith swept them all [illegible]

"No politics," was the ultimatum.

Then, with the Smith smile evident again:

"I'm a doctor of laws now. I'll be pleased to discuss any legal affairs, but that's all."

Rep. Edw. B. Almon of Alabama Dead

Washington, June 22 (AP)—Representative Edward B. Almon of Tuscumbia, Ala., died of heart trouble today at a hotel here. Almon was chairman of the House roads committee and a leading advocate of government operation of Muscle Shoals, which was in his district.

NOW THEY ARE SAILING

NOT ALL WORK AND DEBATE AT LONDON'S CONFERENCE

London cables these days tell of attempts to peg the dollar, of rumored changes in the personnel of the American delegation, of the retirement of the Germans—all heavy stuff. Well, trying to repair the world's damaged economic machinery is a serious job. But the conference does have its lighter moments. For example: a dinner which was attended by Stanley Baldwin, Premier Deladier, Ramsay MacDonald, Cordell Hull

"A master of state administration, as shown by his record as Governor of New York," Pres. Lowell said in introducing him; "a statesman with courage to proclaim unpopular opinion in time of trouble."

Honorary degrees of master of arts were conferred on Francis W. Hunnewell, secretary of the Harvard Corporation for 20 years; Joseph R. Hamlen, president of the Harvard Alumni Bulletin; Philip Hale, Boston art and music critic, and Louis E. Kirstein, vice-president of William Filene's Sons Company.

Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard astronomical observatory, and George D. Brikhoff, professor of mathematics, were awarded degrees of Doctor of Science.

Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of Riverside Church, New York, was the lone recipient of the degree Doctor of Divinity.

Of the 2148 degrees in course conferred, 680 went to undergraduates in Harvard College, 550 received the degree of Bachelor of Arts (229 with honors), and 130 that of Bachelor of Science (38 with honors). Thus more than one-third of those graduating in Harvard College received honors in studies.

GRADUATE SCHOOL

In the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences 189 men won the degree of Master of Arts, 107 that of Doctor of Philosophy.

The Engineering School graduated 31 Bachelors of Science (14 with honors), 5 Masters of Science, 40 Masters in Science in Engineering and 7 Doctors of Science.

The Law School graduated 416 Bachelors of Law (35 with honors), 10 Masters of Law, and 16 Doctors of the Science of Jurisprudence. The Business School graduated 395 men, 44 of them with distinction, and awarded two degrees of Doctor of Commercial Science. The Medical School graduated 131 doctors (14 with honors). Other departments of the University awarded degrees in lesser numbers.

HIGHEST HONORS

The highest scholastic distinction in Harvard College, that of winning the A. B. or S. B. degree "summa cum laude" (with highest honors), was awarded to 15 men as follows: Melvin Leon Anshen, Boston; Ralph Philip Boas, Jr., Norton; John Coert Campbell, Bronxville, N. Y.; Sidney Cohen, Lynn; Albert Charles England, Jr., Pittsfield; Henry Caraway Hatfield, Evanston, Ill.; Richard Inglis, Jr., South Euclid, O.; Harry Tuchman Levin, Minneapolis, Minn.; Robert Caffey Liddon, Jr., Corinth, Miss.; Knight Warner McMahon, Flora, Ill.; Isadore Painter, Brookline; Peter Shuebruk, Cohasset; Robert Chester Smith, Jr., Detroit, Mich.; Andrew Joseph Torrielli, Watertown; Bert Arthur Winter, East Cleveland, O.

65 P.C. of Business Grads Get Jobs

At least 65 per cent of the 394 graduates of Harvard Business School won't have to worry about getting jobs. They have them already, according to an announcement from the Business School.

Of those assured work, 53 will enter manufacturing; 27 have positions in department or chain stores; 37 are entering finance; 8 will join auto insurance companies; 7 go into public accounting; 4 into advertising, and the rest into journalism, teaching or miscellaneous business.

Falls From Wharf to Death in Harbor

Funeral arrangements will be completed today for Daniel J. Donnelly, 35, of West Fourth st., South Boston, who fell into the harbor from an old warf at the foot of Fargo st., South Boston, yesterday afternoon and was drowned.

His body was recovered with grappling irons about 25 feet off the wharf last night.

Loan Plea Fails

Inability of Malden city officials to float a loan was said today to be the reason for the fact that municipal employes will not receive their salaries there this week.

JUNIOR LEAGUE GIRL WEDS

Gifts to Harvard Over 4 Millions Under 1932

Gifts to Harvard University for 1932-1933 were $4,000,000 less than for the previous year, Pres. Lowell announced at a meeting of Harvard alumni today.

The amount of gifts for the current year totalled $3,602,330.37 as compared with $7,787,111.97 of the previous year.

The largest gift this year was $1,013,293, made by an anonymous donor, for the establishment of Harvard's "super-intellect" School of Fellows. Pres. Lowell's last innovation in his series of developments at the university.

Edward F Harkness, whose past donations of millions made the House Plan possible, gave $363,631 to complete the project.

Six anonymous doners gave $206,000 to purchase the Arthur B. Duel collectio nof Japanese prints.

Isabella M. Powell gave $100,000 to the Arnold Arboretum, and Earl Willson Bemis gave a similar amount to the Gray Herbarium.

A group of 250 associates of the Harvard Business School contributed $30,000 for research and for current needs of the school library.

One of the larger gifts was a donation of $54,784 from the estate of Franklin Goodrich Fessenden.

Harkness, a multi-millionaire financier, has given a total of $13,000,000 to Harvard in the past five years, and his gifts to hospitals and universities both here and in England are said to approximate $100,000,000.

Seven Somerville Teachers to Retire

KNAVE'S GIRL

By Joan Clayton

"If I don't get a job within two weeks, I promise I'll telephone Mr. Haverholt," said Patricia, in determined tones.

Patricia's Stepmother Is Furious at Her Refusal to Accept Haverholt's Offer

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Unable to find employment, young and beautiful Patricia Warren capitalizes her card skill, at 50 cents an hour, by making a fourth at bridge parties given by the wealthy Mrs. Eileen Sycott. Julian Haverholt, noted bridge expert, is fascinated by Patricia and impressed by her game. He offers to make her his secretary and partner, suggesting that she live at his home. Aware of Haverholt's unsavory reputation, Patricia hesitates to accept the position. Haverholt escorts Patricia to the drab home she shares with her nagging stepmother. In the hallway he suddenly embraces Pat. Indignant, she declines his business offer and rushes indoors

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"THE JOB is still open." Kneeling he thrust the card beneath the locked door. He waited a few minutes longer and then, adjusting his hat at a jaunty angle, he strode off into the night.

On the other side of the door in the shabby living room of her home, Patricia cried and cried. The rise and fall of her hopes in a single evening, the collapse of the brilliant, exciting future she had pictured, was too much for her to bear. She hated Julian Haverholt. How she hated him.

It did not occur to her that she might still accept the bridge expert's glittering offer. His action followed by his most humble entreaties made acceptance impossible to her. Many times she had heard rumors of his reputation concerning various of his secretaries. She had hoped these rumors were untrue. But at the first opportunity Julian Haverholt had shown her just what her position with him would be. To live in his house with such a man to be always on guard against him, to know what all the world was saying about the relationship no she could not do it.

Her feet bare a soiled cotton kimono held around her, she developed on an old, old grievance. "Heaven knows you should win. Playing bridge is the only thing you can do."

"I've tried to get a job," said Patricia sullenly, averting her face lest the other detect the signs of recent tears.

"'Tried' won't buy the groceries or pay the rent! It's a funny thing to me that if you can win seventy dollars playing cards you can't figure out some way to put yourself to better account than hiring out as a bridge partner for fifty cents an hour."

"Patricia," called her stepmother's querulous voice from the bedroom beyond. "Whatever are you doing? Come to bed at once!"

"I'm coming," was the girl's muffled response.

"Did I hear you crying?"

"No."

"Did you and Mrs. Sycott win tonight?"

"Yes."

"How much?"

"Seventy dollars I believe it was."

"I do think Eileen Sycott might offer to split winnings with you," said Lillian Warren crossly.

They had gone over that thousands of times. "She takes all the risks," Patricia pointed out wearily.

"You always win," persisted her stepmother, thoroughly aroused now and thoroughly a nag. She appeared in the doorway, her crazy ling hair done up in curl papers.

TWO DOLLARS

"Let's not discuss it any more tonight. There's two dollars in my pocketbook. Please take it."

"I should say I'll take it," muttered the older woman. But as she picked up Patricia's pocketbook she spied Haverholt's card on the floor. She swooped upon it before the girl could anticipate her movement.

She read the fatal words. "The job is still open." She demanded explanations. The whole story came out. The storm broke upon Patricia's hapless head. Lillian Warren would hear no explanations, no excuses. She could comprehend nothing beyond the fact that Patricia had refused an offer which would lift her two small daughters and herself into comparative affluence.

"Your reputation," she cried, her face contorted with fury, "don't talk to me about your reputation. After what your father was, you've got no reputation to start with."

"Don't you dare say that!"

"I'll say what I please. J. R. Warren might have been your father, but he was my husband, and I say he was a worthless man who died without a cent and left his children to starve. He couldn't do anything except be the gentleman and play a good game of cards. And you're exactly like him!"

"I'm glad to be like my father."

"Whatever you're glad to be, you're going to telephone Julian Haverholt in the morning and tell him if he still wants you to work for him you're willing."

"I won't."

"You will."

The ugly quarrel woke the children sleeping in the bedroom. Teresa, the elder, began to cry and Ellen promptly followed suit. The apartment was bedlam. Patricia's head was splitting. She thought that she could stand no more.

But she would not yield to her stepmother's demands. She and Lillian Warren had never lived at peace together. The two were entirely incompatible. They saw none of life alike, they understood each other not at all. Patricia was a lady by birth and by inclination. Her stepmother was a lady by neither.

TOLD TO PHONE

Indeed it was the patrician quality, a certain aloofness and pride in the girl, that fed the flames of Lillian Warren's hatred. For those same qualities she had, before his death, come to hate her husband. The dark, romantic southerner with the charming manners, a child whom she had promised him to love, had, in the end, been too different from her and from the things she knew. A man who would gamble when he could not afford to lose, but who would rather starve than appeal for help to outsiders was to her, incomprehensible. His principles and codes, his nice sensibilities and prejudices, like Patricia's, meant nothing to her. Both of them, according to the outsider's bitter belief, would cheerfully swallow mountains only to strain at gnats.

Pat was a little better in the battle of misunderstanding. In spite of calm deliberation she could forget the vulgarity and crudeness of the woman her father had married and could comprehend it by the others point of view. She knew the havoc that poverty played with nerves. She knew her stepmother's fierce ambitions for little Teresa and Ellen. The thought of these latter brought her at last to compromise.

"Stop screaming at me, Lillian," she said finally. "If I don't get a job within two weeks I promise I'll telephone Mr. Haverholt."

(To Be Continued)

Patricia is invited to meet Clark Tracy, famous polo player. Tomorrow's installment tells of her eagerness. This has an important bearing on the plot of the story and should not be missed.

Former Fox Player Is Signed by Radio for Her First Free-Lance Picture

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles, June 22—The freelance players, I must say, haven't fared so badly. With very few exceptions the girls and boys who have pulled out from one studio and one contract have landed jobs almost immediately. Marian Nixon is through at Fox, her option having expired weeks ago. Her first free-lance engagement at another studio is with Radio.

Very strange, too, I might add, since she remotes opposite Joel McCrea in "A Chance at Heaven," Vina Delmar's stories are movie-minded and lend themselves to the screen. Al Santell who directed Miss Nixon during her Fox engagement, is probably responsible for her job at Radio. He is the director in the case.

Found: Leading Lady

Lots of broken hearts this morning in Hollywood, when it was learned that the leading lady for Wild Boys of the Road was found right in Busby Berkeley's chorus. More tears have been made and more young hopefuls thrilled at the prospect of getting a leading lady job. The cherine who draws the honor is Dorothy Coonan. And, according to our source, her beauty didn't get her the job. She is pug-nosed and freckle-faced. Just a regular kid and of the right age to play opposite Frankie Darrow, the lead.

Worth Hurrying For

A movie brought Mary Brian back to our midst and not worry over Dick Powell's condition. We all thought that Mary would be so worried about her reported severe illness that she hurried back to him. The truth of the matter is a job awaited her. M. H. Hoffman had signed her by wire for the lead in "One Year Later," a story by F. Hugh Herbert and Paul Terris. Pauline Garon, who is that pleased over having a new job, has the second lead and the lineup of male talent contains the names of Russell Hopton, Donald Dilloway and Hale Hamilton. E. Mason Hopper, pioneer director, megaphones the picture.

A Line Or Two:

Winfield Sheehan has had to work overtime to answer the telegrams sent to him, sympathizing with his "serious" operation. The serious operation was a very slight job on Winnie's nose. He was in the hospital exactly two days, and far from berushed to the hospital, he had planned it for weeks, but only a few of his close friends knew it. The injury to his nose was caused when, as a small boy in a kid fight, he received a blow that in later years developed into an obstruction in the nasal passage. He is back on the job. Bruce Cabot arrived home tonight from the East, where he has been playing in "Glory Command." Adrienne Ames was at the train bright and early to meet him. They spent his first night home at the Cocoanut Grove dancing. The girls of the Dominoes are giving Sam Hardy, president of The Masquers, a tea. He is retiring as president, where he served most efficiently last term.

Ricardo Cortez, Featured in 'Midnight Mary' Film, Says Villains Have Advantage

By HARRIS MORGAN

Ricardo Cortez is one of the most interesting movie personalities we have met. It is a pleasure to note his return to town, for he is an actor who always delivers a strikingly fine performance. Tomorrow, at Loew's State, he will be seen in "Midnight Mary," a splendid Cosmopolitan picture, deftly treated from every angle.

• • •

It is always a pleasure, too, to interview this favorite leading man of ours in filmdom. For Cortez is a most human chap, and is that rare thing, a modest fellow. You like him, too, because he effaces himself in his portrayals—he prefers to act the part, than to play into audience favor.

Ricardo Cortez

As he puts it himself:

"I would rather have an audience hiss at me than yawn."

After more than eight years of villainy Ricardo has decided that the life of a bad man on the screen isn't as "bad" as might be supposed. He has broken up thousands of picture homes, fired many rounds of ammunition in gang battles, and menaced the heroine through hundreds of dramas, but he still thinks the "villain" has a decided audience advantage.

"The 'heavy' in a picture has practically every dramatic situation handed to him by his part in the action," says he. "After the romantic interest has been built up through many reels, a strong climax will occur with the villain directly involved.

"Romantic leads strain themselves to the utmost to interest an audience in their particular love story. Every artifice is used, with beautiful photography, magnificent settings and other production aids to help win sympathy of the spectators. The 'heavy' can jump out of a doorway in a pouring rain and capture audience interest immediately.

"In return for this concentration of attention the 'bad man' of a picture helps to strengthen the romantic tension by his villainy. And while being a menace the 'heavy' is better as he gets worse. I don't believe there is another job in the world where you swim every time you lose!"

Refreshing Costumes

Gowns of Dark and Cool Sheers Are Good for Town Wear

THERE COMES a day every year when you're bored with your old light colors, and long for the charms of sleek, dark frocks. Tailored sheers are the very thing to wear in town for luncheon dates, shopping, matinees and so on and on and on. They're almost the coolest idea in fashion for town days.

Beginning at 9 o'clock, if you're coming in town that early, you can wear them for the rest of the day. If there are dainty lingerie touches so much the better. Such crisp accessories help carry you through the later afternoon into the evening for informal after-dark occasions. It is a paradox that a dark dress can look so infinitely cool!

In one of New York's best gardens, the three dresses in today's drawing were sketched. The sheer on the right will be a favorite, for it will be the last of the summer things to go out of style. The eye is immediately attracted to the pattern of dots and dashes on the white ground. Dots are big and little, and dashes are long and short. The dress is a print, but it looks like a woven design. Its neckline is a deep V, and its sleeves are short and full. The skirt is gathered to the bodice in front and back, and has a deep hem.

The dress in the middle is a dark sheer with a white organdy collar and cuffs. The collar is a deep one, and the cuffs are turned back. The skirt is gathered to the bodice in front and back, and has a deep hem.

The dress on the left is a dark sheer with a white organdy collar and cuffs. The collar is a deep one, and the cuffs are turned back. The skirt is gathered to the bodice in front and back, and has a deep hem.

IN A BOWER OF LILIES GLEAMING in soft candlelight, Elizabeth Scaife plighted her troth to Albert Beveridge yesterday in historic St. Michael's Church in Milton . . .

All of the Junior League gathered to send their beloved member on her way with cheers and good wishes . . . fashionable Milton turned out to wish her well and friends from far and near attended this wedding, one of the most notable of the season . . .

A vested choir preceeded the bride down the aisle as she marched on the arm of her father, Mr. Roger L. Scaife, her long veil and train sweeping for yards behind her . . . the sun was shining brightly and a large group of bridal attendants and ushers completed a charming wedding picture . . .

Among the Fair Things . . . and they were fairest of the fair, we glimpsed Betty Thomas in a lovely old blue frock and Eleonor Fabyan from Beverly Farms in a sweet corn-colored gown with fetching brown bows . . .

Brown Worn by Rachel Warner

RACHEL WARNER WAS SMARTLY TAILORED as always in a brown dress with canary yellow waistcoat . . . many vestees were noted in the costuming . . .

Evelyn Hollingsworth wore a currant red dress with foulard design in white . . . her hat was white, bound with a cherry shade.

Like a well-fed sparrow, petite Serita Bartlett was in a canary yellow afternoon frock . . . just as pretty and vivacious as when she came out three years ago . . .

Ethel Grew was in blue and white . . . it would be simpler to note who was not in evidence at this affair than to try and enumerate whom we saw . . . simply everyone we know in F. F. circles welcomed the bride and her husband at the little house on the hill . . . it was quite a climb for some of the older generation but they made it.

Mrs. Sam Batchelder was among those hanging on her husband's arm as she strolled about under the marquee . . . her costume was dark blue with checks on the jacket . . .

Also escorted by her good-looking husband was Mrs. A. H. Parker, Jr. (Esther Grew), who is so lovely looking it is impossible for us to remember what she was arrayed in . . .

Miss Catherine Olney in Blue

MRS. ARTHUR DEVONS HILL WAS ACCOMPANIED by Mr. Hill and Miss Catherine Olney, in blue and frills, was passelly as usual, her blonde hair shining in the sunlight . . .

We noted Betty Soule, Dorothy Lawrence, Marjorie Saltonstall, in bright red like her cheeks . . . scores of the young set as well as many from the older group . . .

Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott was in dark blue . . . her daughter Edith Wolcott, who is studying nursing in New York, was much missed . . .

Mrs. Roger Wolcott was beautiful as ever in the brown shades and we noted Mrs. Thomas Gannett, Mrs. Amor Hollingsworth, Mrs. David Cheever, Mrs. Robert Saltonstall, Mrs. John Hallowell, Mrs. N. P. Hallowell, who came over from New York for the wedding, and hundreds of other well known names and faces . . . the bowl was overflowing and everyone commented on it was a REAL wedding in every way.

Almost everyone we meet is talking about sailing for Europe this week, Barbara Proctor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Anderson Proctor of Commonwealth ave. and Blytheswood, Swampscott, is announcing her engagement to Richard Hildreth Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs Alvah Percy Thompson of Peach's Point, Marblehead.

Society Notes

AS THE SCHOOL SEASON AT Miss Walker's school, now located at Fisher's Island, Connecticut, is over, many prominent young Boston ladies are returning home. Among these is Miss Anne Blake, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Osborn Blake of Beacon st., who with her family will go to Brickhouse at Sugar Hill. Miss Peggy Blake, a debutante of this season, will have a dance with Miss Barbara Taylor, debutante daughter of the John I. Taylors, at the Country Club in Brookline on Dec 15. Several smaller parties have been arranged for Miss Blake, her sister, Catherine, giving a luncheon for her at the Country Club sometime in October.

New Styles of the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

AMID A FAIRY LAND of Japanese lanterns threaded between the leafy trees of the Lowell House quadrangle the senior spread took place last night. The hall of Lowell House was beautifully decorated with bouquets of spring flowers artistically arranged and soft lighting that transformed the place into a fairyland of romance and loveliness

Mrs. Julian Coolidge, who is the guiding spirit of Lowell House activities, always gracious, always interested and a most charming hostess, greeted the guests in the receiving line gowned in a green evening frock matching the decorative theme to a nicety

Mrs. Kenneth Murdock, tall and slander and statuesque, wore white. Mrs. Irad Harding, who was one of the patronesses and mother of Irad Harding, football star, wore a becoming black and white lace evening gown.

Among the beautiful girls who assembled was Miss Nancy Nelson escorted by Mrs. Stewart Dorman. Miss Nelson wore a black ruffly net gown with bright green sash

Miss Jane Bancroft has such an extensive and chic wardrobe that it is difficult to keep track of it. We glimpsed her at the Country Club races in a good looking oyster linen tailored suit with bright cheery accessories. Then at the senior spread she appeared in a white crinkly creation. It was tailored and trimmed with back fur, a gorgeous creation! Again we glimpsed her at the festivities at the Stadium in a coral afternoon frock The frock had that new little touch of scarf collar and her hat was of brown horse hair

Miss Virginia Vincent tall and blonde attended the Lowell House spread wearing one of the new crispy satin plaid prints and looking lovely in it

Miss Barbara Shambaugh of Chicago, and a graduate this Spring of Vassar, wore a gorgette flowered print, white background with pink and mauve flowers. She wore her golden hair coiled about her head in a halo effect. It was most lovely and quite different

Miss Florence Lenox, also of Radcliffe, wore a gorgeous frock of electric blue, most lovely on her

Household Pet Show Benefits Infirmary

The Household Pet Show to be held next Wednesday afternoon at the Longwood Cricket Club, has attracted an additional list of patronesses including Mrs. A. Winsor Weld, Mrs. Albert S. Bixelow, Mrs Charles M. Rowley, Mrs. Clement M. Burnhome, Mrs. Kennard Winsor, Miss Eleonora Sears, Mrs Mary Otis, Miss Charlotte Sherburne and Mrs. Charles E. Blanchard. This interesting and unusual event is being planned for the benefit of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary

Among the youthful exhibitors of dogs will be Bobbie and Teddy Lawrence, sons of Mrs. Edward Lawrence, Reed Anthony, and Ruth Edmands, the sub-deb daughter of the Isaac Edmands, and Mary Bradshaw, whose Persian Saluki hound will attract a great deal of attention. Mrs. Blanchard's nephew, Dickey Douglass, will enter his collection of tropical fish

LEADING ONE'S SWEETHEART ON SHORT CHAIN HAS BROUGHT ROMANCES TO GRIEF

Petty Jealousy Does Not Pay; Drives Love Away Instead of Attracting It

By Beatrice Fairfax

WITH EVERYTHING that grows blooming its head off, the outing picnic pleasure excursion—call it what you will—is again with us. And from a good many letters which have come to this [illegible] indoor haunts are sometimes anything [illegible]

The fa[illegible] and, as we [illegible] were [illegible] seems to be [illegible] girl's escort speaks [illegible] with another girl, or if an [illegible] girl speaks to another [illegible] is anguish of spirit and the day is spoiled. Jessie's letter is typical.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Tom and I aren't actually engaged, but we expect to be some day. We have gone together for two years, and I never go anywhere with anyone else. Lately I've been wondering if being so loyal to Tom hasn't been a mistake.

At the Outing

Our country outing was held ten days ago and Tom and I went in his roadster. There was an unattached cousin of his on this affair, and he danced with her three times [illegible] friends, and not [illegible]

She's only his third cousin, so I couldn't see that relationship had anything to do with his attentions. Besides, she is an ugly girl, but she has a "gift of the gab" and the men seemed to like her.

When it was time to go home some of the [illegible] had come in buses were [illegible] people with cars [illegible] to the third [illegible] I was furious didn't speak [illegible] way home and haven't [illegible] Tom. Yet I don't see [illegible] wrong. He took me and [illegible] most attention to me only. I'm considering breaking with him.

JESSIE W.

She's All Wrong

No indeed, I don't think you're right, Jessie, my dear, on the contrary I think you're all wrong. You tell me this girl was unattached; what more natural than that Tom, as one of the family clan, should see to it that she met people, got acquainted, etc? and didn't sit out all the dances. I like what you tell me about this well-bred young man, and I hope you're not going to stage a "mad" and lose him.

Leading one's girl or boy friend on too short a chain has brought many a budding romance to grief. "You think I was a Pekingese and she was leading me," wrote a boy a day or two ago, "so I quit."

In the good old days in this country, when great-great-grandmother went for an outing with the gentlemen who became your ancestor, there was a reason for staying by her side almost continuously. That was because Indians, or maybe buffaloes or wolves might make a sudden foray on the picnic. But the time has passed for this excuse for protection, and girls who price themselves on being modern do not insist upon it.

May I suggest that you be less exacting, if you want things to run smoothly.

The Marry-Go-Round: Love on Holiday

By HELEN ROWLAND

SOME WOMAN'S chances of happiness are ruined forever when a man starts out in life as a coddled son

Helen Rowland

The "dangerous woman" in a man's life is not the selfish, wild thing who weakens his pocketbook and breaks his heart but the sweet, well-sacrificing "angel" who softens his backbone and paralyzes his initiative

You can believe all that an honest woman says except when she [illegible] and her age of her [illegible] and all that an honest man says except when he's running for office or making love.

When a man puts a temptation (or a woman) out of his life "forever," he should take the precaution to lock the door and bar all the windows, or, the first thing he knows, it will be sneaking right back in again.

The old-fashioned girl used to rush home and wash her mouth after a bold bad man had kissed her; today a girl merely takes out her lipstick, repairs the damage and looks around for the next bold bad man.

A beard is a pretty good chaperon; but a nice, clean shave, a massage and a glossy new manicure always seems to smooth a man's way for sledding into some new folly.

A woman is smart. She can make money in a tearoom—and then lose it in a real estate deal. But a man is smarter. He can make a lot of money on a horse race—and then lose it under the cushions of the divan.

'MY, MOTHER, WHAT A LITTLE HAT YOU GOT!'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Start out into the day troubled—with some kind of a load that really should be no load at all when you remember the pack that some folks carry right now, and have been footing it along under for a year or two? But the load looks big and black to the citizen or citizeness—big or little. Start out so—and if you are a real human with an impressionable mind it won't be long that you're out into the time by the clock that you will see something to make you whistle.

Things happen along like that if you prop your eyes open and present the old soft heart to the hurrying foot of beauty. She'll leave a print there if she has half a chance.

This came along very early in my day. A day, hot, hurried, that called me away from both the country—that I like—and my work—that I like when the Muse smiles—and she does not smile if the recipient of her favors is in too big a hurry—harassed with several things that bore a great and forboding family resemblance to trouble. I thought of the Rocky Mountains, and a cabin thereupon, where nothing could get at me, and I could "do my art" without hindrance or heat.

And on the train I saw this modern, oh very modern, Madonna and her child. And her chapeau was the last word. And her little girl-child was the last word in little girls. Sweet and funny, and something wonderful to have—as children are. Said she, high and sweet and piping (and mother went pink, for she knew the area for five seats around heard), "My, Mother! What a little HAT you got!" (a la Red Riding Hood) "It's littler'n MINE!"

Which was nothing but the truth. Her young mother's eyes and mouth rounded, and then twinkled and laughed. And she hugged the very little girl to her, and whispered in the ear under the flaxen curls. Whispered what? Perhaps, "So I can look a little like you, dear!"

My day was set! I had seen one, just ONE was enough, of all the fine things the world has to offer.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Design Rules Hold for Sports

By Margaret Matson

WHEN CHOOSING your bathing suit, think not only of fashion and whether you wish something conservative or gay. Think too of the lines which will suit your figure and the colors that will enhance your skin. Most skins turn brown as a berry in summer. That is the reason for the popularity of white, bright blue, yellow and black in fashionable circles, for these are interesting colors with sun-tanned skin.

Clear skins that will remain light through the summer look best in soft pastels or dulled dark tones. And sallow skins—for there are plenty whose browning takes on a yellowish cast—really need the bluish greens, the reds, and corals to reflect an extra pinkness into the skin.

Figures that are well proportioned but stout can wear the latest lines in suits, but because of the ample size, they should by all means choose colors that are dark and discreet.

Figures that are not too large but somewhat irregular in contour do well to select the stripes, checks, prints and plaids with which this summer's mode is filled. The pattern in the suit camouflages the irregularities of the figure by "blurring the outlines."

If one's bust is small, the seamed uplift brassiere top in some suits—fitted well, of course—is the means of adding a seeming inch or two. And if one's hips are large, the suit that has dark color shorts with striped printed or in some way decorated top should equalize the proportions.

If one's bust is large and one's hips small, the trimming should be placed at the waistline or below, and the top of the suit should be very simple.

If one is broad of shoulder and slim of hip, or if she is well proportioned, she can wear any type she pleases. These are the figures we should all like to have.

If you have clothes problems, with which we can assist you, please address Margaret Matson, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Invitation To Wedding

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am planning a house wedding for my sister, and I would like to know if it would be proper for me to write the invitations in longhand on this letterpaper. We expect to send only fifty invitations, and if you think it is all right, will you be good enough to mail me a sample of how to word the invitation?

For a simple, informal house wedding it is entirely correct to write the invitations as informal notes on white paper. Indeed, I think that this is an especially charming way of sending out the invitations, for it gives them a friendly, gracious flavor.

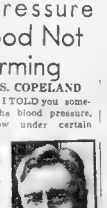
Low Pressure of Blood Not Alarming

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

RECENTLY I TOLD you something about the blood pressure, explaining how under certain conditions it becomes high. Today I want to tell you about low blood pressure. I do so because this condition is more common than most persons suspect.



Dr. Copeland

Not long ago an article appearing in The American Medical Journal stated that low blood pressure is of little significance and must not be considered an alarming condition. This is true, providing the individual is in good health. Most persons who have it are unaware that their blood pressure is low for they usually enjoy excellent health. They lead energetic lives and seldom suffer any physical complaints.

But there are many sufferers from low blood pressure, who now definite effects of the disease. They complain of digestive disturbances. They tire easily, always feel worn out and have no "pep." They are little often subject to colds and minor ailments. In general, they have poor health.

These are the people who have exceedingly low blood pressure that tends to physical disability, warrants careful investigation. In all probability it is a sign of some disturbance within the body.

ROLLING JELLY ROLLS

By Martha Lee

WE HAVE our dark moments in the Martha Lee Cooking School—moments when we do our "laugh-clown-laugh" act instead of sitting down to shed a few salt tears.

One of these times was when we forgot to shut the "ears" on our sponge cake tin and the batter oozed gayly down onto the bottom of the oven.

When we opened the door all we could see was a small Vesuvius smoking tranquilly. Other sad moments were those when the steak caught on fire and the jelly roll wouldn't roll.

Never a new class starts that some one doesn't request a jelly roll, and we pull up our sleeves and go to work with a special prayer that the darn thing won't split this time. All too often it has to be rushed behind the screen to hide its yawning seams. Lately, however, now that we have fallen heir to Mrs. Ina Potter's never-fail jelly roll recipe, we'd be willing to make jelly rolls for royalty. In case you haven't yet clipped this formula, better do it right now.

Mrs. Potter's Jelly Roll

3 eggs
3 tbsps. flour
3 tbsps. sugar
½ tsp. baking powder
1 glass jelly

Beat the yolks until very light. Add the sugar and beat again till well mixed. Sift flour and baking powder and add to egg mixture. Fold in beaten whites. Pour batter into a pan about 10x13 inches. Bake at 350 deg. F. for 8 to 10 minutes. Remove from oven and turn cake onto a paper. Spread with jelly and roll up. Sprinkle outside with powdered sugar.

And will those of you who requested a Chocolate Roll made in the school please accept this as our apology for programs too full to allow of it until the Summer School. Meanwhile, try this Chocolate Roll, with our blessing.

Chocolate Roll

6 tbsps. sifted cake flour
6 tbsps. cocoa
½ tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
⅝ cup sifted sugar
4 egg whites, stiffly beaten
4 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored
1 tsp. vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add cocoa, baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Fold sugar gradually in egg whites. Fold in egg yolks and vanilla. Fold in flour gradually. Pour into pan, 13x10 inches, lined with greased paper, and bake in hot oven (400 deg. F.) 13 minutes. Roll as for old-fashioned jelly roll, spreading with seven-minute frosting and covering the top with a Chocolate Butter Frosting made thusly:

4 tbsps. butter
2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar.
1½ squares unsweetened chocolate
4 tbsps. milk
½ tsp. vanilla

Cream butter, add 1 cup sugar, and cream together thoroughly. Add vanilla and chocolate. Add remaining sugar gradually, beating well after each addition. Thin with milk until of right consistency to spread. Make enough frosting to cover top and sides of 8x8x2-inch cake.

We have quite a few lesson sheets — although not complete sets—left from our Spring Cooking School and will be glad to send a collection of these tried and tried recipes to you if you would like to send 6c in stamps to Martha Lee for return postage.

HOW TO KEEP SKIN CLEAR

By Helen Follett

IF YOU are troubled and embarrassed by a skin that will not remain clear, it may be that the cleansing you are giving it is not sufficient to rid it of impurities. This may not be your own fault. Cleanliness must be both from the inside and the outside. You must thoroughly cleanse your system as well as your skin.

Drinking plenty of water, eating fresh fruits and green vegetables is one help. Getting yourself into good condition by regular exercise and rest is another. And going periodically on a liquid diet which will thoroughly clean out the poisons in the digestive system is a third.

Aside from this, one should wash her skin twice a day with soap lathered well into the pores. Tincture of green soap is good. Almond meal or some soap also. After sudsing the skin, rinse it thoroughly to eliminate any last vestige of soap.

After this if one's skin is oily, the next thing is dry, however, one should use a creamier lotion or a little nourishing cream smoothed in to counteract the dryness and to form a basis for the makeup.

If the condition is quite bad, it might be well to call in a physician for assistance, for skin eruptions sometimes are the result of internal troubles which only a physician can cure. However, do this after you have tried the skin cleansing and liquid diet for a little while to assure yourself that it is necessary.

If you shall be happy to send me a good liquid diet and the trade names of soaps which we can recommend. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. Address Helen Follett, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. This column is continued in the Boston Sunday Advertiser each week.

By JACK CONWAY

Pompton Lakes, N. J., June 22—I talked with the famous Magic Coin today. And the Magic Coin was quite mysterious as it pulled me into a corner.

"I like Henri DeGlane of France to win back his world's heavyweight wrestling championship from Ed Don George at the Boston Garden tomorrow night," whispered the Magic Coin. "I don't need any more than the records to prove DeGlane should regain his championship. He won from George twice prior to their last contest. In their most recent meeting, DeGlane scored a fall, and then had his right collar bone busted as he lost the next fall.

MR. BOSTON

"The Frenchman displayed great courage when he came out of his dressing room to meet certain defeat after having met with his injury. DeGlane tells me his injured shoulder is all right again. Henri is the most finished wrestler since Frank Gotch was boss of the heavyweight division. He is a marvel on the defense. He will wait for hours for an opening.

"George has improved greatly. He is not as impatient as he used to be. He has more power than DeGlane, but does not know how to save his strength as well as the Frenchman, and picked up some easy money meeting inferior opponents. After all one doesn't win a championship every day in the week, and one cannot be blamed for trying to hang on to a title. A fellow with George's courage and daring deserves to win, but I think the result will be otherwise."

* * *

DeGlane Considered a Perfect Wrestler by Experts

I find that men close to the wrestling game consider DeGlane a perfect wrestler. He is always in condition, and never makes a mistake on the mat. Jack Curley, veteran mat promoter, believes the Frenchman knows too much about the mat game for George. He says the Frenchman will force the breaks his way.

Curley would like to see DeGlane win. He is quite honest in advancing his reasons.

"DeGlane is a greater card than George," said Curley. "I would like to match him with Jim Browning in New York. The show would have an international setting. It would be America vs. France on the mat. Plenty of appeal to that, eh? Especially in view of all this talk about debts. I have plenty of those myself. Yet I can get $25,000 which I shall offer to DeGlane to meet Browning provided, of course, the Frenchman knocks off George in their Boston bout".

* * *

Browning Is Rooting for George to Win

Jim Browning does not share the views of Curley. He is out on the line rooting for George to win. I have an idea the New York State champion believes Don would prove an easier opponent for DeGlane. The latter has already beaten Browning, and Jim figure the Frenchman would repeat.

George can set the stage perfectly for Browning by knocking out DeGlane. Then the marvelous body scissors king can step to the mat and battle George to see who is the real mat king. I think Browning realizes DeGlane would prove the better card, but right now he is more interested in getting an opponent he figures he could conquer.

The semi-final bout between Jumping Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame star and conqueror of Jim Londos, and Nick Lutze of California has wrestling fans talking. Blase Broadway cannot understand how Paul Bowser and the Christmas Fund committee were able to make this match.

"Savoldi and Lutze is a main bout," said Doc Morris who did Jack Dempsey's publicity on the recent Schmeling-Baer bout. "It took a fellow like Bowser and the Christmas Fund to make that match. I'll bet all the money I shall make during the next ten years that nobody else could have booked that pair."

Morris is a Savoldi rooter. He says that he thought Jumping Joe had the better of Jim Browning in their New York bout which went for two hours without either man scoring a fell. He is picking Savoldi to win from Lutze on Friday night.

Sharkey and Carnera Down to Weight for Title Bout

Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera are both down to fighting weight for their 15-round world's heavyweight championship bout at the Garden Bowl in Long Island on next Thursday night. Sharkey is at 204 pounds, while Carnera is down to 261 pounds. From now on the big fellows will take things easy.

Al Lacy has ordered Sharkey to cut down on his road work. The champion will devote most of his time to boxing. Johnny Buckley has secured splendid sparring partners for Sharkey, and the latter will be given some stiff drills during the next few days.

Random Shots at the Target

Al Lippe looks for a thrilling bout when Sharkey and Primo step into action . . . Al has visited the camps of the rival boxers and reports both are in excellent condition . . . Dan Morgan likes Sharkey to defeat Carnera . . . Billy Duffy and Walter Friedman think it is a cinch for Primo to outgallop and outpunch the champion . . . Duffy has had personal charge of Carnera's training and has done a good job bringing the giant Primo to the peak . . . Jim Buckley, who used to manage Gunboat Smith, was a visitor at Sharkey's camp at Orangeburg and was impressed by the form displayed by the champion . . . Max Schmeling will never return to this country, according to a well founded Broadway report . . . Bob Cobs thinks otherwise.

Sonnenberg Wins Bout With Lewis

Los Angeles, June 22 (AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, Boston, gained two out of three falls last night from the mat behemoth, Ed Lewis. Both are former claimants of the world's wrestling title and have been variously regarded as such in many states.

Sonnenberg won the first fall in 38 minutes, 16 seconds, Lewis the second in a minute, 16 seconds. As Lewis had Sonnenberg on the mat ready to pin his shoulders in the third fall, the referee inadvertently tripped over the combatants, toppling Lewis over.

Thundering Line Sweeps Away on Wild Dash as Barrier Lifts

OPENING DAY 'HANDLE' ON MUTUELS $87,643

By SAM COHEN

Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., June 22—The fate of horse racing, on which Lou Smith and the New Hampshire Breeders Association gambled here with the first real inaugural of the sport and legal pari-mutuel betting, was sealed with a stamp of success. For $87,643 in good American currency was handled by the betting booths during the course of the opening day's seven races.

There is no doubt but what these figures would have reached $100,000 had not the printer fumbled the programs. This delay was very costly, for the cards were not on hand for the opening race, and fans had no way of knowing what horses the numbers indicated on the approximate odds board.

PROGRAM DELAY HURTS

As a result only $7600 was bet on this race. The program had not been completely distributed until the middle of the third race, which accounts for even more losses.

Through it all Lou Smith, owner of the track, carried on with a smile.

After the meeting, Smith had ready the proud figures of the mutuel take, ninety per cent of which went back to the winners and 3½ per cent to New Hampshire.

The 28-day meeting will continue this afternoon with another brilliant program of races, seven in all, and topped by the New England Purse, a race for two-year-olds with a purse of $700.

This is a five furlong event and Rockingham records and wars splattered all over the track on the opening day are expected to hit the dust under the flying heels of the W. Ziegler and Middleburg Stable entry, Zipalong and Esperante.

Buddy Ensor, veteran jockey who is making turf history with a great comeback, may again steal the show from the many star bangtails that face the barriers in the seven races.

ENSOR UP IN FIVE RACES

Buddy, who booted home no less than three winners in four starts, yesterday, will be a busy boy once more this afternoon. Voltaire, 1 in the early probable odds for the second race; Commandman, another long shot with an excellent chance to cop the third despite the fact that the field includes the performers as Lough Tarn, a feed box hot shot, Ladino and Sea Fox, son of Man O' War, Brookside, the same horse on which he won one of his three races yesterday, and which is entered in the sixth race; Kinnear, another long shot in the last race.

"Hunch" Betting Wins for Women Race Fans

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., June 22—There must be something to this thing called woman's intuition. Even when it comes to betting on the ponies.

And some day, maybe, men will get wise to this strange phenomenon and pay a little deserved attention.

Women were "hunch" betters at the opening session of New England's turf classic and they were among the chief winners.

They had their racing forms and literature governing the why and wherefore of horses, but for the most part women placed their bets on the mood of the moment.

There was no buzzing in each other's ears, no whispered conferences. Women marched over to the stable, looked at the horse and placed their bets. Or they simply looked at the name of a horse and took the chance.

WOMEN PICK WINNERS

And when the race was over, and the crowds flocked to the cashiers' windows to be paid off, women were to be found in great numbers.

Take me for instance. I don't even presume to know why a horse can run. But I can take heed of that something which keeps pounding away in the heart, and let it speak.

Believe it or not, that's what I did yesterday discounting the innumerable "tips" which poured into my ears, and I came away a winner. And so did hundreds of other women.

Letting you in on another secret on how a woman places her bets on the horses: she watches the jockeys.

While the men discussed past performances of the horses, the women were noting the jockeys named to ride.

FANS DIGNIFIED

New England, with its traditions of Puritanial reserve, responded to the carefree atmosphere of the day, but with a dignified reserve of poised acclaim.

All in all, though, the approximately 15,000 men and women who crowded the grandstand, the club house and the track rail, had a grand time.

But for the most part, it was the women who went home, singing

FIGHTING HOSE FACE TIGERS

Special to Boston American

Detroit, June 22—A pair of southpaws who a year ago were pitching for the Senators will duel at Navin Field, this afternoon, when Lloyd Brown goes to the Red Sox hill and Carl Fischer trots out to the Tiger mound for the third of a five-game series.

Detroit fans who attended the opening doubleheader of the engagement left convinced that they had seen the strongest Boston entry to visit this city in 13 years, after watching the visitors win the first game, 10 to 9, and drop the second, 8 to 3.

Dusty Rhodes started for the Sox. He didn't have a thing and the Tigers went into the third inning leading 6 to 0.

Then the hostiles put over two runs in the fourth, two in the fifth, five in the sixth and one in the seventh to win. The natives could pick up only three hits off Bob Kline and Lefty Weiland.

In the second game a home run by Dale Alexander gave the Sox off to a three-run lead in the first frame. But Paul Andrews couldn't protect it. Fred Fitzberry went all the way for the home boys and was invincible after the initial frame.

Cubs Tackle Revamped Braves at Wigwam

By JOE CASHMAN

Whatever his other faults, nobody can accuse Wilkinsburg Will McKechnie of ever letting any grass grow under his spikes when his Braves are losing.

No. Tribal combination drops more than two or three games in a row before Pilot Bill starts shifting. And, brother, when he begins to shake things up nothing less than a minor earthquake results.

Pinky Whitney, always a third-sacker before meeting up with McKechnie, finds himself a second baseman. Dick Gyselman, Coast rookie is back on third. "Buck" Jordan has returned to first, permitting Randy Moore to renew acquaintance with his rightfield public. Rabbit Maranville and Joe Mowry are cooling their heels on the bench.

TRIBE CAN CLIMB

All these changes were made for the closing doubleheader against the Pirates and worked like a charm. After dropping the first three games of the engagement the natives captured both ends of the twin bill, 6-3 and 5-3.

McKechnie asserted that he had his strongest Braves team ever when he secured Whitney and Lee from the Phils. He probably had his latest lineup in mind when he made that statement. At any rate the new aggregation flashed as fine a brand of ball as has been seen at the Wigwam in many moons.

It's not too late for the Tribe to go places and do things in the current race, if the initial showing of the new combination can be taken as a criterion of its true worth.

The Cubs, defending champions have caused McKechnie more heartaches this season than any other two rivals in the loop, downing the Braves six times, while bowing once.

EIGHTH FRAME LUCKY

The eighth rather than the seventh was the lucky frame for the Braves in both games yesterday. They put over a run in the eighth stanza of the opener to break a 5 to 5 tie and win out 6 to 5, while in the nightcap Whitney hit his first home run as a Brave with two on base, which changed the score from 3 to 2 in the Bucs favor to a 5 to 3 Tribal win.

There were almost as many pitchers as fielders in action during the matinee. The Pirates used Smith, Chagnon, Kremer, Harris and French in the opener and Swetonic and Chagnon in the second game Cantwell and Zachary were in the first game for the Braves and Frankhouse, Starr and Mangum toiled in the second.

Whitney hit two singles as well as his home run in the two games. Lee tripled to score two runs in the opener and came through with a double in the second game. Gyselman made two safeties in each game. The leading local slugger though, was Raid Al Spohrer. He went in to catch in the seventh inning of the first game and singled on his only time up to pave the way for the winning run. Then, in the second battle, he made three hits, knocked in a run and scored once.

MISS HICKS IS IN STIFF MATCH

Glen Head, N. Y., June 22 (AP)—Stiff semi-final matches today faced the two favorites in the Long Island women's golf championship, Helen Hicks and Mrs. Marion Tupis Lake.

Victorious without much trouble in their quarter final matches, Miss Hicks encountered Mrs. Leo G. Federman today while Mrs. F. P. Lind, conquerer of the medalist, Rosalie Knapp, was the barrier Mrs. Lake faced on the path to a battle of champions.

The former southern champion overcame Mrs. J. L. Anderson of Cherry Valley by a four and two margin yesterday while Miss Hicks defeated Dorothy Smith of Pomonok four and three. Mrs. Federman had the day's hardest match against an old rival, Mrs. Henry March, winning one up on the 20th green. Mrs. Lindh, playing brilliantly, turned back Dorothy Millard of Old Country, four and three.

Kojac's Backstroke Mark Up for O. K.

New York, June 22 (INS)—When the International Swimming Federation holds its annual meeting in December it will be asked to sanction ten new world backstroke swimming records set last night by George Kojac, Olympic and world champion. Swimming in a mile race against time, Kojac was clocked by three A. A. U. officials at distances from 400 meters to a mile.

U.S. Ryder Cup Team Looks Over Course

London, June 22 (INS)—Members of the U. S. Tiger Nine Beats Coach Crisler, 2-0

Princeton, N. J., June 22 (INS)—Fritz Crisler, Princeton football and basketball coach, was launched today upon a summer career as a professional baseball pitcher. Hurling for the Princeton Central Jersey league nine, Crisler held the Princeton University team to six hits last evening but was beaten 2 to 0.

HAGEN, SARAZEN PLAY PRINCE

London, June 22 (INS)—Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen, members of the American Ryder Cup golf team, engaged in a round of golf today with the Prince of Wales and Sir Philip Sassoon, royal honors under-secretary for air, at the latter's private course at Trent Park, Hertfordshire.

Before leaving London for Trent Park, Sarazen said

"The entire American team is going out to Trent Park, and at the suggestion of the Prince of Wales, Hagen and I are playing a foursome against the Prince and Sir Philip. We plan to spend the whole day at Trent Park."

Sarazen said he would play a 36-hole exhibition match against Archie Compton, British professional, at Exeter tomorrow and that he would leave for Southport, where the Ryder Cup matches will be held, Saturday.

HARVARD BOWS TO ELI NINE

Harvard dropped its second game in a row and with it the annual series with Yale's powerful nine at Soldiers Field, 4 2. The opener at New Haven on Tuesday had also been won by the Elis, 3-1. Yale swept through the series in successive games for the first time since 1920.

Art Fleger, Yale pitcher, was too much for the Crimson batters, pitching shutout ball for eight innings. Not until the ninth did the Mitchellmen become dangerous and then Coach Joe Woods decided Rogers in favor of big George Parker, who had won the opening game the day previous.

South Boston Nine Issues Challenge

Call Albert Parrett, South Boston 1968, between 7 and 9.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

New York's Yankees and Giants hold on grimly to their slender leads. Both had to win to stay in front in Wednesday's games and both came through. The Giants eased a ball game ahead in the National League by making it three out of four over the Cubs. The Yanks had to go 13 innings to stop the last-place Browns, 3 to 2, and hold their game lead in the American League. Lou Gehrig hit his 17th home run for the champions in the seventh while Tony Lazzeri came through with his 12th in the 12th frame. Mervyn Shea, of all people, hit for the circuit for the Browns.

The Senators, runnerup in the junior wheel, blanked the White Sox, 8 to 0. Led by Manager Joe Cronin, who belted out three doubles and a single, the Solons hammered Gregory and Kimsey for 16 hits. Heinie Manush made three hits for a total of 23 in his last 31 times at bat and he has now hit safely in 24 consecutive games.

The Cardinals, chief foe of the Giants at this moment, came from behind to score a 7-to-6 victory over the Dodgers, who put over all the runs in the first inning. A double by Rogers Hornsby, pinch-hitting in the eighth, drove in the two runs which gave the Mound City crew the verdict.

The lowly Phillies made a clean sweep of their four-game series with the fifth-place Reds by taking the final contest, 10 to 6. Fritz Knothe, ex-Brave, made four hits for the Quakers.

The Black Secret seemed instinctive as 10,000 mat fans watched him conquer Bull Martin in the main bout of Steve McPherson's mat show at the Arena in straight falls.

The Secret's 'go-behind' toehold made Bull quit in 22 minutes and then the Bull was disqualified for using the strangle in 22 45 by referee Ralph Dixon. Al Pierotti started in referee, but was removed and Dixon sent in.

Twenty-min. bouts: Pat Fraley and John Spellman, drew; Charlie Mandi drt. Eddie Cinders, 14:38; Bob Russell, def. George Linehan, 12:15; Kewpie Kilroy def. Pat Reilly, 7:56, and Rudy Ladlii and Joe Kajel, drew.

Ten-min bouts: Al Peckham def. Tony Catelli, 8:15; Tony Sisco def. Ed Cone, 4:35; Tom Mix merged def. Pat Connolly, 1:35; Fred Moran and George Myerson, drew, and Jose Manuel and Jim Wallis, drew.

Worcester Victor in N. E. Loop Tilt

Taunton, June 22 (AP)—Worcester staged a ninth inning rally to down out Taunton, 6 to 5, in an N. E. League game.

New Bedford, June 22 (AP)—Nashua and New Bedford played to a 5 to 5 deadlock in an eight inning game called on account of darkness.

Lawrence, June 22 (AP)—Mulcahey limited Lowell to four hits and a single score, and Lawrence won the N. E. League game, 3 to 1.

CITY LEAGUE LEADERS KEEP RACE CLOSE

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

The red hot race in the East Division of the City League may be even hotter after this evening's embroglios. The leading Rosebuds have an off night but the three teams hanging on their flanks, the Neponsets, St. Augustines and Presentations all play if the Weather Man will let 'em.

Chief interest tonight rests in the Garvey Field duel between St. Augustine and Neponset, who are racing neck and neck, hot on the trail of the Rosebuds. The Presentations, still within striking distance of the leaders, will meet St. Thomas at Murphy Field.

Dominic Liked Work

Some of the twilight league pitchers are complaining of being overworked. They are a bit [illegible] than Dominic Mitterazza, the big leaguer, who in his twilight league days pitched five games a week and knicked because he couldn't pitch more. Dominic was getting forty bucks per game.

Nick Vitello of the Somerset has caught a great game against the Ingalls A. C. until a bruised shoulder put him out of the game and into the hospital. Nick probably will not play again this year. Tony Reppoli of the Hagans will [illegible] for the Pats the remainder of the season.

Don Godfrey not only has been catching a great game for the Winthrop aggregation but has been massaging the horsehide like a Johnny Hodapp in the "sour-on-chins" game against the Somerset Pats. Don got three hits in four times up.

Harrison a Pilot

PRIMO IN PERFECT SHAPE

CARNERA SAYS HE'LL DRUB SHARKEY

By JACK CONWAY

Pompton Lakes, N. J. June 22—Primo Carnera could step in and fight Sharkey tonight as far as physical condition goes.

I saw Carnera work out here, and he is in splendid condition for his championship battle a week from tonight. He scaled 241 pounds after sweating through five rounds of boxing and three sessions of bag punching.

Primo has improved greatly since his last contest with Sharkey. He is using his left hand better, while he is punching short and hard with his right duke.

PRIMO'S PILOT CONFIDENT

There is an air of confidence around the Carnera camp. Billy Duffy, Primo's manager, believes Satchel Feet is certain to win the title.

"Carnera is too strong for any man in the world," said Duffy. "I expect Carnera to win by a knockout between the 10th and 15th rounds."

Carnera has perfect confidence in his own ability.

"What do you think about the Sharkey bout?" I asked the challenger.

"I shall win," replied Carnera simply. "When I fought Sharkey before I lacked experience. I have improved as a boxer, and have also trained properly. I am punching shorter and harder, and will try to knock the champion out."

Carnera talks simply and cannot be accused of boasting. He does not believe there is a man in the world he cannot conquer.

RESULT TOSSUP SAYS RICE

Grantland Rice, famous sports writer, watched Carnera in action here was first inclined to believe Primo would defeat Sharkey, but when pressed for an opinion said that right now he considered the match a tossup.

"I do not believe there will be a knockout," said Rice. "The bout will probably go 15 rounds. The man in the better physical condition will win. I believe Carnera has a greater urge to win than Sharkey. He is broke. He is anxious to make money as well as become heavyweight champion. Sharkey has had everything the boxing game can give. He sometimes tells people he would rather go fishing than fight any more."

John J. Fitzpatrick, Garden vice-president, and Manchester Jimmy Johnston also got an eyefull of Carnera. Johnston looks for a hard, even fight with neither deciding the issue in the last five rounds.

Sharkey in Best Form for Title Go

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 23 (AP)—With one idea in his mind, a clear cold knockout—Jack Sharkey is working down to the close of his training grind for his 15-round title defense against Primo Carnera June 29, as keen and fit, and vicious as he ever has been in all his fighting days.

Under a broiling sun the Boston sailor batted three sparring partners, Hans Birkie, Chester Matan and Yustin Sirkin, and finished off with five more rounds of light bag punching and body exercises. He weighed 203 pounds, 2½ less than he scaled for the match with Max Schmeling in which he won his title a year ago.

He carried himself sullenly, about the camp. Most of his venom was saved for his sparring partners, all capable fighters.

AS THE CHAMP'S GIRTH GOES DOWN

HARVARD STAR MEETS MURPHY

Ardsley-on-Hudson, N. Y., June 22 (AP)—Dick Murphy of Hamilton, the top-seeded player thasn't found enough opposition to extend him so far in the Eastern intercollegiate tennis championship, but the going promises to be tougher from now on.

Murphy today encountered John T. Dey of Harvard, the sole unseeded survivor, in the semi-final round with the prospect, if victorious, of meeting either F. Ellsworth Davenport of Harvard or Al Horton of Williams who haven't lost a set in four matches, in the final round.

The Utica star swept over Norcross S. Tilney of Princeton, 6-2, 6-1, in yesterday's quarter final match while Horton won almost as easily from E. Ramer Donovan of Fordham 6-4, 6-4. The two Harvard players both were carried to three sets, Ray beating William G. Mundy of Yale, 2-6, 6-3, 8-6 and Davenport eliminating Donald Hawley of New York University, 8-6, 1-6, 6-1.

The team championship apparently was safe in Harvard's possession. The Crimson's total had mounted to 24 points today and Harvard still had one singles player and two doubles teams more as many as Williams, still in the running.

Tony's Homer First in Seven Years

St. Louis, June 22 (INS)—When Tony Lazzeri, of the New York Yankees, drove a home run into the empty field bleachers against the Browns at Sportsman's Park yesterday, he accomplished something that had not been done since Babe Ruth turned the trick seven years ago. The blow, made off Ed Weiland, was Lazzeri's twelfth homer of the season.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Broadway Merry-Go-Round!

If you attended the premiere of "The Ghost Writer" at the Masque Monday night—and there's no reason why you should not because it wasn't much of a play as plays go—even poor pay—you would have marveled at the much publicized Tommy Manville, Jr., sitting side by side with the dark haired Neva Lynn. You also would have observed that Doris Windsor's mother, who insisted was to be Tommy's bride any day in spite of the denials of this department's wire sitting with handsome young Jimmy Dunn. Still in the observing mood you would have noticed that during the intermission that the Manville-Lunn combination left as far apart from the Dunn-Windsor combo as the Brooklyn Bridge from Catalina Island. It was all an afternoon of the party at Max Bloom's estate which I discussed in yesterday's colm. It appears that Neva and a few others, when they left, went over to Manville's place and when she arrived, Tommy promptly left Claire's side and walked off with Neva whereupon the gulchiditious cinemabelle after powdering her extremely pretty nose and putting her blonde locks, walked out of the house and drove back to the city. Monday night she was to attend the opening with Manville but as I've stated, it was young Master Dunn who was her escort instead—and so now, you may record, that the "parochial" affair of Manville and Miss Widsor is ruptured and that Miss Neva Lynn is again headlining for the time being at any rate—and if you must yawn, please put a hand up to your mouth. An open yawn is distinctly de trop.

An interesting gentleman sat in Billy Lahiff's Tavern Monday night—and while I knew him by sight and he probably knew me, neither of us spoke until we were properly introduced. Then I broke through the barrier by reminding him that I had met him once before—several seven years ago, when in my eagerness to become a New York newspaperman I took a day off and trained into Manhattan and invaded his office. He was editing a N. Y. paper then, and it took me almost an hour and a half to convince his hard-boiled male secretary that I wouldn't leave until I had spoken to him. Finally, he came along, and over the secretary's protest, I made my plea. I wanted a job—as a reporter or desk man. Could I have it? The fellow stared at me coldly and finally said "No." I started to leave (those were the days when I was naive enough to believe a "no" meant "no") and he called me back. "I'm really choked up with men here," he said in a softer tone. "Maybe if you try again in a few months——?"

That was my first contract with Walter Howey. He laughed when I asked him if he said "No." "How would you know Chicago," he asked. I'd never been in Chicago before but I answered, "From alley to alley and lake to lake I can find myself around blindfolded . . . All right,' snapped Smith. 'I have an assignment for you. Now how fast do you think you can get to Madison st. and Washington?' He must have well have said Balbon and Bues, but I answered boldly, 'In ten minutes.' He looked at me quizzically. 'Ten minutes—are you sure?' . . . 'Certainly—if I run fast.' He told me to go ahead and when I got there to phone him for additional instructions. When I got outside the building I went up to a cop and asked, 'Officer, what's the quickest way to get to the corner of Washington and Madison sts?' I want to get there in a hurry.' He looked at me for almost a full minute and said, 'Son, if you ever get to the corner of Washington and Madison sts. get yourself sandals and a white robe. You'll be a miracle man.' I learned then that it was like running over to the corner of Seventh and Second aves in New York—it just couldn't be done." I liked the story so well I forgot to ask Howey whether the usual P. S. followed—did he get the job?

British Man-on-the-Street Being Asked for Opinions About Economic Parley

By N. F. T.

Londoners out strolling in Piccadilly on Saturday, will be given an opportunity to express themselves into a microphone as to the probable outcome of all the heavy international economic conference discussions now current here. Moreover, these opinions are to be heard by Uncle Sam through facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting System. Boston listeners may catch it all (WNAC) between 5.45 and 6 o'clock.

* * *

Unique and timely to be sure, if it works. Some rather disconnected expressions have come across as a result of similar efforts put forth in this country. There was strong suspicion existing on one or two occasions that perhaps some of the persons picked "at random" were in reality well aware as to just what would be asked of them. There I go again, just an illusion-busting old skeptic. In any event it's a good stunt and should supply at least a few smiles.

* * *

Interviewing the selected passersby is a job assumed by Mr H V Kaltenborn, the CBS commentator who left recently to look on at the big sessions for his American network broadcasts. Cesar Saerchinger European representative for the Columbia radio people, will assist Mr. Kaltenborn.

LOCAL LATHER

No word of any plan for broadcasting the voice of "Happy Wallace" Al Smith, now in Boston to have a Harvard degree conferred upon him, has been received here. WBZ-WBZA may have the chance, however, as the WIXAZ short wave transmitter, out aboard the good ship Gertrude Thebaud yesterday to broadcast scenes aboard the Presidential sloop Amberjack, where Mr. Roosevelt is busy "resting" awhile . . . Willie Morris, the sweet staff announcer at WEEI, who originally hails out of Missouri (really), hasn't off from the Hub on her vacation to the Southwest on June 25, leaving a certain young broadcasting fellow hereabouts with the deepest blues, meaning there's a new husband that Miss Morris won't be coming back.

Aircaster Says---

Newest Radio Angle Revealed

New York: Living and learning on Radio Row—

I've just discovered, for instance, that an entire string of restaurants and seven New York hotels subscribe to a wired wireless service, which gives them and their patrons the choice of seven programs, untainted by commercial announcements.

The radio audience isn't nearly so dumb as once believed. Dr Frank N. Freeman, of Chicago University, who conducted an intelligence test in a recent broadcast, received 2,500 replies. Twenty-six per cent came from professional people. Listeners over 50 years sent 412 replies, and 17 came from savants over 70. The average score of ordinary subjects is 24 points. The average score totalled by the radio audience was 32. Men and girls, revealed by their answers that one sex is as smart or as stupid as the other. And now Dr Freeman may write a book.

Frank Novak, the one-man band claims that if an intelligence test was made concerning morning and evening audiences, the morning audience would win, because habitual listeners are fresh and more appreciative and vastly more attentive.

On the other hand, Ben Alley insists that the evening audience is more relaxed and not in a hurry to be out of the house, and is accustomed to longer and more intricate shows and therefore is the more sophisticated.

George Hall use and claims that thinking in terms of Broadway is what is handicapping those who want to write musical comedy for radio. Established show writers just can't get away from the habit of visualizing action, pantomime and gestures. He claims that Gilbert and Sullivan, Friml, and Victor Herbert were the best guys, who were able to give their compositions enough "oi" and melody to make them naturals for the air.

A pet canary has sent George Olsen into research. He adds this to today's radio items: "If a man's big head is the same proportion to his weight as a canary's, his lightest word would be heard at a distance of 600 miles, and we wouldn't need any radio sets."

Kate Smith will present Mrs. Curtis Dall, the daughter of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt a radio, to be installed at the camp for unemployed girls at Tifa,

True to Type

Van Sweringen Misquoted

By GILBERT SELDES

Owing to a mistake made by a newspaper—not this newspaper—I was credited a few days ago about Mr. O. P. Van Sweringen with a remark not true, and I hasten to apologize both to him and to you for having said it. What I wrote appeared near the end of a column of type, and this comes at the end of my apology is at least as conspicuous as my wholly unintentional wrong. You will remember that Mr Van Sweringen followed J. Pierpont Morgan partners before the Senate committee. In the course of the testimony Mr Van Sweringen spoke of the position of the director of a railroad corporation with his two duties toward the public and toward the stockholders. Mr Pecora properly asked which came first. At this the error occurred. A report was sent out and published that Mr Van Sweringen answered that the corporation came first. I saw this report. What I did not see was the correction which appeared in later editions. Mr. Van Sweringen simply did NOT say that the corporate interest came ahead of the public interest. His opinion, I understand, is that the best interest of the corporation and the best interest of the public is served. It was, perhaps, with a memory of another railroad man Commodore Vanderbilt, and his opinion of what ought to be done with and to the public, that I wrote my comment on the supposed utterance of Mr. Van Sweringen.

Gilbert Seldes

Somewhere [illegible] that even Commodore Vanderbilt when he said "the public be damned" was [illegible] public. He was [illegible] ing against [illegible] newspaperman who [illegible] his reported remark [illegible] meant something [illegible] ent. In any case, the unfortunate phrase clogged the Commodore for the rest of his life and is still remembered. Mr Van Sweringen has not, to date, said anything to retract and it is only the mistake of a reporter whom needs to be corrected.

Regretting [illegible]

I do not regret the [illegible] comes to me [illegible] whatsoever, [illegible] sentiment [illegible] years—I was [illegible] past twenty days. A few days ago I was talking to the [illegible] of a department [illegible] New York, who [illegible] in the last few days [illegible] sion of Congress about [illegible] dustrial recovery, but [illegible] thusiastic but [illegible] knew the tremendous [illegible] in the way. It appeared [illegible] that he ardently hoped the new system would work.

But the surprise came when he spoke with regret of the failure of the amendment to exempt [illegible] exempt securities, bonds and the like. He has been a wealthy man. I made no inquiries, but I am not totally a fool, and I judge that he has taken cuts with the rest of us, although where he is a good businessman, he has suffered less than his competitors. Yet he wanted the government to tax his Liberty bonds and other securities on which he now pays no taxes.

His thought, I gather, is that it would be a good thing for the country if he lost his special privileges—that such a change, for him, 15 years ago, enough ready cash to buy large quantities of bonds on which he now pays no taxes. He may figure that what he loses in taxes he will make up in profits. He is not a superhuman altruist and enjoys his wealth as much as he enjoys the work which brings his wealth. And he is totally convinced that the days are gone when he can make money at the expense of other people. He is pretty sure that he can make money only if other people—even the vast majority of other people—are also making money.

Headline Terror

I worries whether we have lost our capacity for being surprised. Since March, people with weak hearts and unsteady nerves have shied away from the newspaper headlines for fear of being struck by what man Roosevelt would do over next. The days of depositing passed and we entered the days of do-everything from beer to gold. Now, the Wall Street economists tell us that we are in for a quieter moment. A lull in the legislative storm. Congressmen are returning to their domestic joys and the country can rest.

And in the meantime the most overwhelmingly revolutionary act in the domestic legislation of the country has become law and its workings will be manifest from day to day. The public interest becomes a part of every industry in the nation, which means, ultimately, of every business and of every individual. Free competition—the absolute ideal of free trade—is at an end. We are back in the Middle Ages. Guilds, a number of them, existed prosperously in those ages. Some were powerful and they were painted and that the industrial history of the guilds, with their codes and their honor, was as fine a system of production and distribution as was ever seen on the face of the earth. General Johnson has exactly two years to prove they were right.

Bar Silver Sells Up

New York, June 22 (AP)—Bar silver firmer, ½c higher at 33¾.

Hears:

That the market has been maneuvered into a spot where it is said to be prepared for a sudden final burst of strength. Provided that attempts to crash the highs of early this week are successful, the industrials might make 105, while the rails reach the 50 mark. It will be a traders rally if it does develop, and, while it could look awfully good for a time, it will be better to cling to the sidelines if constant supervision of the tape is not possible.

Market Action

The salient feature of current market action is the contraction of public interest. Both the transactions and total issues traded have fallen off during recent periods of declining prices. The natural deduction to a top but it must be admitted that it proves for a longer period than that seem so far.

Another sign of market action that is usually noted at tops is the pronounce of a secondary group in the current case, the oils. While these do bring good activity at times in the light of the standard stuff is distributed And the behavior of leading industrials and rails certainly suggests carried unloading.

Street Gossip

It is common gossip among good Street operators that after the preliminary distribution a broad advance would be good market strategy. It would serve to be "bullish" on the situation after a spurt of recent dealings and to disposed to join their becoming over-enthusiastic, buying

These do not need to go on the theory of large risks of ruin in the market of this time should convince themselves with the thought that a worthwhile opportunity to enter the market will be theirs before summers is out. And it should be below current levels. —F. A.

B. C. FORBES SPECTATOR'S COMMENT
LEWIS HANEY FRANK H. MELOON

BOSTON AMERICAN

GOLD STOCKS ARE FAVORED BY HANEY

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

New York, June 22—To my mind, it seems clear that important investors in the stock market hesitate to take hold at present levels. As I pointed out last Thursday the quality of the buying has deteriorated, and there is clearly a more pessimistic tendency to take profits.

Some stocks "act well." For example, I am favorably impressed by the performance of Bendix Aviation, Briggs Manufacturing, Standard of California, Consolidated Oil, International Cement, Northern Pacific, Great Northern and National Dairy Products. The oils and the building material stocks have as good a chance as any.

Also I continue of the opinion I expressed some months ago, that the seasoned and sound gold mining shares are logical to hold at a time like this. One should prefer some one of the Canadian companies on account of the uncertainties surrounding a gold market in the United States.

In general, I think that the powers behind the scene now desire a slowing up in the bull movement, and will endeavor to have prices hold around present levels for a while.

Therefore, although it seems probable that still higher prices will eventually be seen, I am inclined to look for a period of "trading" market now. Perhaps as good a guess as any is that there will be another advance, followed by a resumption of the rise.

If this general pattern is to be approximated (and the "if" is one logical conclusions as to market policy are as follows:

(1) During the next few days, only trading commitments should be attempted, and small profits should be accepted on these.

(2) Speculative trading accounts should be closed during periods of strength.

(3) The sound or dividend-earning stocks bought as investments should be held intact.

(4) The short side should be avoided except by expert traders, who may sell on bulges for quick turns.

(5) Funds should be accumulated to buy the cheaper issues in any good two-or-three-day reaction.

One cannot reasonably figure that the administration will allow any severe recession while it is bending all its energies to boost commodity prices, establish optimistic sentiment, and stimulate business.

Vitamin Beer to Come to America

Buying in the so-called wet shares" is being stimulated from time to time by new fads and discoveries. Vitamin beer will shortly be introduced to America, according to Dr. Ziegler, of New York agent for American Lux Process Company, who recently returned from Europe to familiarize the American brewing industry with the new Lux process for the sterilization of the food properties in beer. GOOD NEWS IN U. S. INDUSTRY IS THE RULE

By FRANK H. MELOON

It is notable that good news in American industrial circles is becoming the rule, rather than the exception. New gains in steel and power production along with a swelling volume of railroad traffic, bringing movements on some of the carriers to the best levels of 1933. Now the New England power output gain in the past week was 14.2 per cent above a year ago.

Further good earnings reports for the railroads for the past month are encouraging, along with the improvement in the automobile industry. Carriers have been stiffened materially by the improvement of Joseph B. Eastman, Boston's representative on the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the new railroad co-ordinator that he was hopeful of an early and satisfactory ending of the pay cut controversy.

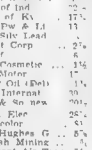
From American Trade Commissioner George R. Canty at Berlin, former secretary to Ex-Mayor Peters of Boston, and Consul-General George Holden Tinkham we have a book interesting information on the program of the European motion picture industry for the past year. Perusal shows considerable progress achieved, in the face of dire changing conditions. Sound films, as elsewhere, have George R. Canty taken the leadership, with a marked gain in the United Kingdom.



The extent to which American sound feature films participated in the British market during 1932 more clearly appears from an examination of the footage accredited to them. The footage of all feature films registered during 1932 was 4,918,558. This total is divided as follows: British, 984,209 feet; American, 2,749,000 feet; continental and other countries, 394,-127 feet; total, 4,027,576 feet

Maritime Association of the Chamber announces the entry of the Boston-Panama Line into Boston—The Pacific Coast Line. Peabody & Lane, Inc., members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, will represent the line. The first steamer, the "Hefron," is expected to start loading here later part of this month and thereafter a sailing from Boston is scheduled every three weeks. Cargo will be handled on the trips from the Pacific

New Haven Adds to Railroad Control

Washington, June 22 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today authorized acquisition by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad of control of the South Manchester Railroad Company by purchase of capital stock

The commission authorized the New York, New Haven & Hartford to operate the South Manchester Company's line in Connecticut, holding that the public convenience and necessity required the acquisition.

Wool Prices Rise in Boston Market

"Demand is fair for Ohio and similar fleece wools and prices are firm to slightly higher than last week," according to Commerce, fair-blood, half-blood, Ohio wools have been sold at 29c-30c, in the grease, with some ordering fully firm at 30c, compared with previous quotations of 28c-29c. Prices are firm on strictly combing 56s, ¾-blood, and on 48s, 50s, ¼-blood, Ohio wools at 30c-33c, in the grease, on a moderate turnover," says the Boston office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Oils have come back to a place in the sun. The background of the news is still bullish, particularly as the administration is determined to head off the usual summer letdown in business. What this market needs now is a good bear or two. This widespread bullishness is making a lot of people cross their fingers. Yet there are many investors who are very confident over the course of prices for the next four or five months.

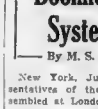
Interest on funded debt of the association was earned 1.38 times after provision for depreciation and all taxes. All of the subsidiary companies are free from funded debts,

International Bookkeeping System Urged

By M. S. Rukeyser

New York, June 22—If representatives of the 66 nations assembled at London for the World Economic Conference had the will to write progressive history, they would set up a model bookkeeping system for the nations' financial accounts, too. It is would entail treating the balance sheet and income account of a country in the same manner that the intelligent banker treats the position of an individual or a corporation.

There, if a nation habitually purchased from the outside world twice as much as it sold, the amount of its power to pay such debit balances would be scrutinized. In the case of Great Britain, which has been running into that position, it has been commonly assumed that the deficit on international payments was made up by various invisible items, including interest and dividends on foreign investments, but the famous report of the Macmillar Commission cast doubt on the accuracy of such estimates.



M. S. Rukeyser

Such modernization of international accounts would take the mystery and mystification out of international finance. The idea that a nation is different from an individual and does not need to keep books goes back to the Peel Act of 1844.

The whole problem would be simplified if the technique by which the corner grocerymen judges his customers were applied in international finance

Ultimately a nation's capacity to expand abroad, for imports would need to be related to its total exports, visible and invisible. On such a basis, there could be a scientific determination of the amount of credit or international buying power a country is entitled to.

Before this happens, when we were lending extensively abroad, no such fundamental accounts were available. In fact, we have never extended to Germany and Austrian banks, the lenders sometimes even lacked detailed statements of the borrowing institutions.

Until such international accounts are available little attempts to agree on stabilization are stupid. They would rest on mere guesswork and manipulation. Once such accounts are available, stabilization can be more scientific than betting on a horse race or kiting checks.

LOWER PRICES ARE RECORDED FOR LEADERS

New York, June 22—Most price changes for leading shares were moderate in trading on the New York Stock Exchange today.

Another sharp advance of foreign exchanges against the American dollar received a rather cool reception in financial markets and stocks and staples, for the most part, idled cautiously.

Fresh selling appeared in the final few minutes and losses for leading shares ranged from fractions to 2 or more points.

MANY NEW HIGHS SET

Speculative enthusiasts, who have previously whirled prices upward as dollar rates declined, watched the national currency rates slump without displaying more than a flutter of the customary inflation emotion.

There was a bulge at the opening which carried leading issues up to three points, many going to new highs, oils and rails rising.

The general list, however, failed to top the year's highs and this brought selling from the chart followers. The resulting reaction saw the early gains wiped out and a number of issues under the previous close.

The bulls threw in support, concentrating on U. S. Steel and consolidated Gas, and were able to stem the reaction before any serious damage resulted. The list then developed a firmer undertone, original bullish activities in individual issues, but trading slackened considerably and the market turned quiet.

Inflationary help was provided by the fresh crash in the dollar abroad with sterling at its high up nearly 6 cents at $4.24 and the discount widening to 10 per cent against gold currencies.

Added to this was the huge employment gain since March, the report that cigarette production in May set a record for the industry and the public debt statement of the railroad wage claim.

ACTIVITY IN OILS

Recent activity of the oil shares is credited largely to further advances in gasoline prices and to hopes that new governmental regulations may at least soon eliminate unfair competition in the selling of petroleum products.

Wholesale prices of gasoline in the Middle West, it was reported, have advanced nearly 100 per cent during the past two weeks and crude oil rates are expected, in some quarters, to approach the $1 a barrel level within the next month or so.

Stiffening of the grains has given encouragement to bullish enthusiasts who believe staples trading may eventually supercede the foreign exchange element as a spur to stocks.

Some private estimates anticipate a decline in wheat production which may result in the smallest winter crop since 1894. Bearish circles, however, point to the heavy carry-over as an important price restraint.

Nothing has been under way for some time and have now reached practical completion for U. S. Industrial Alcohol Co. and National Distillers Products Corp. will form a jointly-owned company to specialize in the manufacture and rectification of spirits or the blending of spirits and whiskies.

The new organization will be controlled jointly by the two companies, each having an equal interest and no public financing will be involved. New company will manufacture and blend spirits, utilizing the substantial stocks of aged whiskies owned by National Distillers.

NEW HIGHS SET FOR GRAINS

Chicago, June 22 (AP)—Wheat, corn and oats all lifted upward early today, and surpassed anew the season's high price records. Signs promised to a torrent of hot weather, with widespread drought conditions unbroken.

Opening 1¼-1¾ up, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started unchanged to higher, and subsequently gained all around.

Opening July: 78; September, 80⅝-¾; December, 83½-84; Corn—July, 47¼-48; September, 52¼-½; December, 56½-⅝. Oats—July, 33⅛-¾; September, 35-35⅛; December, 37⅛-¼.

Cotton Higher in New York Trading

New York, June 22—Cotton futures advanced a half-dollar a bale today as the dollar slumped further against European currencies. The market opened up 4 to 8 points following comparative gains in Liverpool, figures on the sterling rate, and late prices were up 7 to 9 points with July 7 at 8.34, October up 8 at 9.62, December up 8 at 9.78, and January up 9 at 9.84.

Bronze Division of Gorham Very Active

Marked increase in the number of contracts for bronze work received by Gorham Manufacturing Co., Providence, has resulted in placing operations of the bronze division on a full 24-hour schedule and volume of business on the books is sufficient to maintain this rate for several months.

Decorative Medalions

By LAURA WHEELER

THAT BEDROOM furniture you repainted—the porch chairs that need brightening up—the dinette table and chairs—can all be beautified by these attractive floral medalions.

There come to you in color; all you need to do is cut them out, paste them on the furniture, shellac or varnish over the medallion, and you have a professional-looking decoration enhancing your furniture.

The round medalions (Pattern No. 6751) lend themselves especially as decorations on dinette sets, chairs, lamps and small accessories. The pattern consists of two of the larger medallions, 3x3½ inches and four smaller medallions 1½x2 inches. These are obtainable in a color combination or black, red and yellow. Price of pattern 10c.

The large medallions are especially adapted for dining room and bedroom furniture and for small accessories. The pattern (No. 6751) consists of one large medallion 2x5½ inches, two 2½x4½ inches, and four 1-1/4x3 inches, in a combination of black, red and yellow. Price of pattern 10c.

Send 10c for each pattern (20c for both) to Boston Evening American Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Ave., New York City.

Daily True Story — Debt Paid

LLOYD WILLIAMS opened his eyes. The room was wide and bare, except for a table with an assortment of bottles and a few chairs. He noted the austere whiteness of the bedsheets.

"How did the appendix look?" he asked.

Soft blue eyes smiled at him. She was rather petite for a nurse, and despite the starched white uniform gave one an impression of softness and gentility.

"Beautiful as an egg. My, but you have a sense of humor. Didn't tell the truth, I didn't even see the darn old thing. How do you feel?"

She put her hand gently on his forehead. The touch seemed to drive some of the pain away. Gradually he began to doze off.

He awoke with a start. He didn't know how long he had slept. Five minutes or five hours.

"How did you know I was uncomfortable?"

"Mental telepathy," she smiled. "Do you care for a drink?"

"Water." Lloyd nodded with a sort of unpleasant grunt. She poured the drink and left. It seemed to him he had never seen a girl so graceful.

"What's your name?" he asked her suddenly.

"Eleanore."

He spent the night fitfully. A new nurse had been assigned to duty during the night. She was efficient and competent—clothed in the hospital manner. The patient hardly noticed her.

In the morning a day nurse came to relieve her. He woke a little later. She greeted him with a smile. She was tall, gawky and spoke briskly.

"Where's Eleanore?" he asked.

"Who is she? Your wife or mother?"

"No," answered Lloyd, astonished at her apparent stupidity, "she was the nurse here yesterday."

Then she proceeded to readjust him so that he should be more comfortable.

"Now how do you feel?" she queried.

According to the physicians he recuperated marvelously, but Lloyd was impatient nevertheless. At length, however, they pronounced him fit to go. With the help of a few friends he prepared to return to his home.

He stepped into the office of the hospital and settled the final item of his bill.

"By the way," he queried, "there was a nurse I had the first day of my operation. Can you give me her name and address or how to reach her? She left so quickly I had no chance to tip her."

The next afternoon he was at the hospital. He entered another patient's room. She was sitting there—her blue eyes smiling. He stepped in lightly.

"Remember me?"

"Why, I'm the guy with the appendix beautiful as an egg," she made an effort at bantering, "and whom you deserted within one day."

"Oh, that's right," she laughed softly, "now—I remember. I did leave you without a farewell. But you were so well—and you were asleep anyway when I left."

"But what made you leave?" She held out her left hand. On the second finger was a small platinum band.

LIVER TROUBLE
Mrs. Annie H. Daniels, 1102 Trapelo Rd., Belmont, writes: "I suffered from liver trouble, indigestion, from which I suffered for years, and have been greatly relieved by your treatment. I read of Dr. Walsh and his treatment for liver trouble, and decided to try it myself, and am glad I did, for I have been relieved of my trouble, thanks to Dr. Walsh. I make this statement voluntarily, hoping it may help others suffering as I did." Signed (Mrs.) Annie H. Daniels.

SO THE DOCTOR TRIED A LITTLE TENDERNESS
(News Item)

Statements of a police surgeon that small doses of whisky administered to the aged were conducive to longer life caused an uproar yesterday at the First Methodist Church, where prohibitionists held an all-day session.

But a burst of applause greeted a statement by the doctor to the effect that, although he countered small doses of whisky of medicinal value, that was no reason why young people should drink themselves to death.

A Man and His Dog

President Lowell and Phantom

PHANTOM—BY BASHKA PAEFF

The graduating class at Harvard gave to President Lowell a life-size model of Phantom.

Phantom was the deaf little cocker spaniel that had been his companion for sixteen years.

"Good old dog. He was better known around here than I. We were all fond of him. Perhaps he did as much good around here as I did."

Thus did the great educator, in the presence of a vast audience in the Harvard Stadium, reveal the sweet simplicity of his nature; the simplicity and the modesty that have made him a great educator and a distinguished leader in the cultural life of his beloved country.

Harvard is having its 297th Commencement. In point of attendance, of achievement and of enthusiasm, there has been none that has excelled these festive and historic days.

The experience of Harvard has been the experience of the Nation. She has been through the wars and the perils, military, civil and economic, of the past three centuries, and survived them all, regaining new power and influence, with standards untarnished.

Harvard has weathered well the storm of depression and economic chaos that beat down upon the country the past three years. She has supplied a liberal and thoughtful education in a period when brave ideas and courageous ideals were utterly essential to national welfare.

The people thirst for education in times of economic uncertainty. Harvard has met these new and serious requirements nobly. She has refused to retrench; she has declined to impair her curricula. She moved forward; she held to her course with traditional Harvard independence and continued to be an inspiration to her country.

She had a brave skipper at the helm. A. Lawrence Lowell is a man of native modesty and inherent courage. He has commanded confidence. Commanding confidence, he was enabled to command generous endowments for the college. He built up the plant, thereby providing useful work for hundreds of men who would otherwise have been idle. Harvard is today a more elaborate physical structure than ever before in its long history, thanks to Lawrence Lowell's business genius. And Harvard is today a giant in intellectual and spiritual equipment, thanks to the ability, the charm and the independence of the venerable President, who charted the course of liberal education away from the treacherous shoals of false economy.

A. Lawrence Lowell is 76 years of age. He has been with and of Harvard for fifty years. For a quarter of a century he has been its President.

He now retires well meriting the acclaim that is showered upon him and which he receives with customary modesty. May he live long. Surely he will live happily because any man whose thoughts in the hour of his great personal triumph can turn to the homely, deaf little cocker spaniel that had been his companion is possessed of the fine attributes that bring peace on earth and contentment.

Forgotten 'White Collars'

St. Paul's Splendid Work

There is now a Hospitality Room in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul. At the noon hour you will find professional men there, architects, engineers, teachers, musicians, etc. They are served with sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee. A woman of the church contributed money for cigarettes. Another donated playing cards.

These white-collar people have suffered terribly. Building construction fell off 60 per cent. The jobs of engineers and architects vanished. Most professional workers are unorganized, or poorly organized at best. They were left to their individual resources, and these were scanty.

The times are improving. Perhaps the day is not far distant when all of them will be gainfully employed again. In the meantime, the Cathedral Church of St. Paul has certainly justified its existence by the concern it has shown for the welfare of these forgotten men.

Prohibition's End Is Nearer

Three more sovereign States, including our neighbor, New Hampshire, have joined the march away from prohibition and toward temperance and decency.

The people of New Hampshire are thoughtful and hard-headed, not swayed by any frenzy of superficial emotions. In their solemn judgment, they rendered a verdict against the evils of the sumptuary law by a majority of two and one half to one. The verdict was also preponderant in Iowa, which happens to be one State in which the advocates of prohibition claimed a chance of victory.

But there is one other lesson that may be derived from the consistent march of events. The lesson is that Congress often ignores or evades the sentiment of the public. If Congress had not been so obtuse, the damage of prohibition would have been overcome years ago.

Yorkville Awakes

NEW YORK, June 22—That slice of transplanted Germany, known as Yorkville in the East 80's, has a new sparkle with the return of beer. It remains the only section where men go in shirt sleeves solemnly sucking long stemmed pipes and haus-fraus rock on the sidewalk knitting.

O. O. McIntyre

A profusion of dachshunds with their quaintly turned out forefeet add a Rhineland relish. Behind the curtained windows in the evening men are practicing on violins, flutes and cornets, for a majority of the orchestra musicians are recruited there.

The language is in gurgling gutturals of the Teutons. Many children cannot speak a word of English. From the pavement, too, can be seen wall pictures of Bismarck. And the former Kaiser is a photographic idol. On almost every other corner is the Deutsche Apotheker whose store is a neighborhood meeting place.

With prohibition many old brewmasters retired with what they thought a competence. But the collapse of the safest of investments here and in Germany plunged them into actual poverty. Re-opening breweries has given Yorkville a new grip on life. And innumerable jobs!

* * *

Meandering down Broadway from Yorkville last evening enjoying the shine of the shop-windows and the leisurely current of strollers I wondered, if I ever saw Broadway again, what I would remember most vividly. It occurred it would be the Times building, the Astor hotel, Winter Garden and a few other obvious landmarks. But one is never certain. I know a self exile from Broadway, a man weather wise to every inch of it, who declares his most vivid remembrance is of "Mississippi," the coal black and linen dustered hackman who cruised the curbs so many years. Wherever he thinks of Broadway he thinks of "Mississippi."

J. P. Morgan is a voracious reader of the mystery thriller. One of his secretaries has the job of keeping fresh investigations along, with heavy black cigars, on his night table. A spy tells me that at the Washington investigation Morgan's book list included "Murder at the World's Fair," "Blood on the Common" and "Death in the Woods."

Jeanne Aubert drinks a cup of strong black coffee when unable to sleep, and falls right off . . . Fannie Hurst gets $1000 for an hour's lecture . . . Dorothy Herbert, daring circus equestrienne, born in a hick Indiana town, has English drawing room manners . . . Grover Whalen remembers each number of 400 inter-departmental telephones . . . A tailor, Earl Benham, as I remember, tells me Jack Dempsey is the perfect model for a suit and the delight of every tailor he visits. His enormous shoulders, broad chest, slim waist and trim legs make what is known as "building a suit" unnecessary. He just naturally moulds into the cloth. From another source I hear Dempsey has become the most graceful dancer in the town.

* * *

* * *

Ray Long and I once made a round of lower East Side dance halls hahised in what Plattsburg calls "full dress suits." One engaging blonde temptress, with whom I hellied around in an old-fashioned waltz, has always been my perfect model for "beautiful but dumb." She never uttered a word until the end of the dance, when passing a sister dancer binding a hurt finger, she simpered: "How-dja cut your finger, burn it?"

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Letter to a Youngster

AND SO YOU'RE graduating this year!

College? Or High School? It doesn't particularly matter, for in either case you're about to enter life, and are filled with the same hope and bewilderment.

Elsie Robinson

School's over. You've had all you are going to have of education. Now you're supposed to be ready to tackle the Big Game. But where shall you start in?

A month ago it all seemed easy. Your parents and your professors had laid out a pattern for you, and each person and experience fitted neatly and easily into that pattern. But now—

And of what use would it be if you had it?

Even in this short time you've discovered it would be of no use forever. These strange faces with their strange behavior—they would never fit into any pattern your teachers or parents ever devised. The rules are all wrong. The measurements are all cockeyed.

Here are people and ideas, standards and customs of which you never dreamed in your sheltered campus life. This is an entirely different world—a world for which nothing has prepared you.

Not only did they fail to prepare you, but by their misinformation they actually unfitted you to deal with this world. Already you're swamped by discouragement and dismay. And where can you get your bearings? Whom can you follow? Whose technique should you study? Which standards should you accept?

Believe only in that truth which you discover for yourself, and have tested by your own experience!

Follow yourself!

You won't believe that at first. You'll be too busy watching the Other Fellow—trying to copy his success—dodging his failures. And you'll be sure that if you can only copy the Right People and avoid the Wrong People, you'll succeed.

But you won't!

Instead, you'll just go hay-wire, as millions of other eager, confused young souls (and old ones, too) have gone before you, when they tried to use that method. For it never has worked—and there's less chance of it working in 1933 than ever before.

Your one chance of success lies in being yourself.

The world has no use for imitations, even the cleverest ones. It is already filled with them. But it has a tremendous need of originals—men and women with fresh, different ideas and view-points, and the courage of their own convictions.

Does that mean that you needn't adapt yourself to other people; that you must always insist on having your own way? Of course it doesn't. But it does mean that, in spite of all necessary adaptations and compromises, you must be a Real Person, with an established and unique character of your own.

So Being Yourself is not merely your ONLY chance, but also your BEST chance. And the first step toward Being Yourself is to find out what you, yourself, really are. Never mind what your doting parents or your teachers think you are. And stop banking on your own secret hunch that you're a potential Barrymore, Edison, Brisbane or Roosevelt.

What you must discover—what the world will demand—are true facts. So cut out the pipe dreams and take check of yourself.

For what will you do battle?

It won't be easy. It will indeed be difficult and humiliating. You will probably find that you have the capacity of a kerosene lamp instead of a star—and would make a better ditch digger than diplomat. But it's better for you to discover that fact for yourself than to have the world expose it with ruthless ha-ha's.

So Act to search and find your Self—your Real Self. Then back that Self with all the guts and courage and honest work at your command.

Just Folks

Gratis

Money isn't needed to enjoy a flowering tree;
The beauty of a landscape for every man is free.

About the joys of nature no gruesome walls are thrown;

Some money's necessary—of that there is no doubt—
A man must pay for foodstuffs to keep his body stout,
But lasting joys are gratis; who turns his eyes to see
The glory of the sunrise will not be charged a fee.

Good books there are for reading, good friends there are for play,
Earth offers countless pleasures for which we need not pay.
A man can grow in wisdom and lead a happy life.

Human Side of the News

Big Bill Egan, Station Master and Friend of Kings—E. Berry Wall, Still a Dude

By Edwin C. Hill

One of the politest men I know is really a great man whose virtues have never been properly sung. He wears a uniform with brass buttons, but he is a friend of kings and the toast of queens. He owns a crunkful of jeweled decorations conferred upon him by potentates and prime ministers. For what? For being courteous. His name is William H. Egan—Big Bill Egan, station master of the Pennsylvania Station in New York.

He stands like a colossus, bestriding New York, one foot in Pennsylvania, the other in Long Island. In his blue dress uniform, with its gold buttons, he typifies the grandeur of a great railroad system. His nod summons a thousand Red Caps. His watch dispatches the Limited. Lost children fall asleep in his arms. Grass widows returning from Reno view him as the ideal but unattainable No. 2, or No. 3.

And in mufti, what a noble spectacle! Groomed to the minute, but without swank or flourish. The spats, the stick, the stitching on the gloves, the fitted top coat, the ensemble magnificent! The last and final shout in men's wear. In full war paint, Station Master Egan of the Pennsylvania makes Jimmy Walker seem shabby and unkempt.

Dozens and dozens of autographed photographs of the world's great decorate the walls of his private office. Sarah Bernhardt penned across her photo, "To Bill Egan with my best wishes and sympathy." John D. Rockefeller signed his portrait in lead pencil. John McGraw is there and the Prince of Wales and Al Smith and Calvin Coolidge and President Roosevelt and a hundred more.

As for Jimmy Walker, "He's my boy, that's all. A wonderful fellow and a natural orator. Cal Coolidge was my best friend."

Big Bill has been with the Pennsylvania for 47 years and has been Station Master ever since the huge depot was erected 21 years ago. "And when I pass along," says Bill Egan, "I'm going through the pearly gates with my right hand out and saying: 'Here I am, Bill Egan, and I'm looking for my old friends, Grover Cleveland, William J. Bryan, Bill Taft and Teddy Roosevelt.' And what's more, I'll bet they come and meet me!"

Who can doubt it?

* * *

With his pearl-gray topper, his Ascot scarf of Victorian elegance, his Bond street morning coat and trousers, his white spats and his orchid at coat lapel, the one and only E. Berry Wall is still King of the Dudes. His seventy years rest lightly upon his beautifully tailored shoulders. That formidable mustache which used to be the envy of the dandies of Delmonico's and Sherry's sprays across his face in its oldtime magnificence. Under still-dark brows, his eyes are still alert for a pretty ankle or a provocative eye.

We have just had a picture of him from Paris—the same old King of the Dudes, in a vividly-banded Panama, huge stock, fancy waistcoat and sport shoes. He has lived in Paris for twenty years because he finds it cheaper for a poor millionaire. He's still a good American at heart, but it's a mournful thing to saunter down Fifth avenue and meet not a soul he knows.

In the Gay Nineties, E. Berry Wall had a hundred suits of clothes and belonged to sixteen clubs. When he strolled along the avenue he was the despair of youthful dandies, who blinked their eyes at his vividly-checked suit, his swallow tail coat and the silk shirt which matched the suit even to the color and the checks. His stupendous collar, mounting to his ears, was circled with a voluminous scarf of salmon or canary. Five feet of watch chain billowed across the front of his cream-colored, double-breasted waistcoat.

And as Berry doffed his broad, brown derby to the coy damsels in their veils and bustles, his polished black hair gleamed under the startled sun, a match for his beautiful handlebar mustache. It was E. Berry Wall who introduced the cocktail into New York society and who stole off to Baltimore in '87 to marry a beautiful debutante who had been favored by the attentions of the Prince of Wales.

He doesn't work. He tried work once when he became a stock-jobber. But Wall Street took a million and a half away from the King of the Dudes and that finished him. He put the rest of his fortune into bonds and retired to La Belle France. And there he's the leading patron of the races and a fancier of chow dogs which he buries in state.

Working Uncle Sam

Currency Stabilization

It becomes increasingly difficult to perceive how participation in the World Economic Conference at London will contribute to American prosperity.

Recognizing that with only about six per cent of the world's population the United States normally gets 45 per cent of the aggregate annual income, foreign delegations are concentrating on maneuvers which will be costly to the United States.

The atmosphere of the Conference has been clouded not only by the unwarranted injection of the war debt issue into the discussions by Prime Minister MacDonald but more particularly by the total or partial default on June 15 war debt payments by all nations except Finland.

In the circumstances President Roosevelt is to be commended for standing firmly against the effort to effect currency stabilization truce at levels which would be more helpful to France and Great Britain than to the United States.

Though there may be difference of opinion as to the levels at which ultimate stabilization should take place, it would seem national folly for the United States to surrender its freedom of action at this crucial time, when the domestic price level is in the midst of an encouraging rise.

The vast improvement in prices, business activity and volume of employment in the United States since the middle of March has reflected exclusively causes within the realm of ECONOMIC NATIONALISM.

It would be calamitous, accordingly, to permit doctrinaire politicians, such as Secretary Hull, to make commitments at London which might interfere with the economic regeneration at home.

The efforts of the United States under the "New Deal" Administration to effect a "managed recovery" at home should be interpreted as a policy friendly to all the world. The best contribution the United States can make to world recovery is to put ITS OWN ECONOMIC HOUSE IN ORDER.

Then other nations, primarily concerned with home trade, can emulate our policies and progress with us, simultaneously acting to raise their own price levels.

If such fundamental steps were taken to get men back to work in all countries the technical questions of foreign exchange ratios and trade barriers would tend to solve themselves.

It is to be hoped that the American delegates will overcome their naivete and resist to the utmost proposals calculated to weaken the economic position of the United States.

The American position will be secure if our delegates weigh each proposal in scales showing their probable effect on volume of employment and living standards IN THE UNITED STATES.
